Neural and Metabolic Control of Macronutrient Intake Hans-Rudolf Berthoud, Randy J. Seeley, 1999-10-25 When an excessive proportion of the human energy requirement is derived from fat the likelihood of obesity increases Any such individual is at risk for diabetes and cardiovascular disease grave and costly health hazards The selective control of fat ingestion is a promising solution to these concerns Existing data suggests that macronutrient intake can be manipulated Further research is working to create pharmacological tools that will suppress fat consumption It will also be possible to fight obesity heart disease and diabetes Neural and Metabolic Control of Macronutrient Intake systematically discusses the known physiological mechanisms involved in macronutrient selection including their molecular genetic and neurochemical aspects The book is also a critical review of the hypothesis that ingestion of the three nutrients is regulated by separate neural control mechanisms leaving open the possibility that strategies could be devised to intervene in bodily control systems and alter the proportion of fat in the diet This reference provides three types of information First the basic background of the biochemical and physiological systems as they relate to macronutrient selection Second opinions and data concerning to what degree animals and humans show evidence of macronutrient selection And third evidence about how the central nervous system might be involved in the choices animals make among macronutrients

JNCL, Journal of the National Cancer Institute National Cancer Institute (U.S.),1980 Popular Photography ,1983-02 Journal of Rehabilitation Research and Development ,1987 What determines green purchase behavior? Zhongju Liao,Shufeng Xiao ,Siyang Long,2024-05-31 Green purchase behavior refers to consumers purchasing green products that are environmentally friendly using fewer resources and causing lower environmental impact and risk As a growing number of people start to recognize the importance of individual responsibility for environmental protection firms are increasingly motivated to develop green products to fit the needs of this green advocacy Despite an emerging number of consumers claiming their preference towards green brands compared to traditional alternatives researchers have found that there is a huge gap between consumers purchase intention and actual behavior which has gained much attention The psychological process of green purchase behavior may be a complicated process influenced by various factors such as consumer values and norms the pros and cons marketed for green products and various other situational factors Scholars are calling for research that explores the psychological decision making process of green purchase behavior from both theoretical and practical perspectives Due to the high pricing of green products the trade off between the price and function of green products may lower consumers satisfaction Thus there is always a gap between green purchase intention and actual purchase behavior What determines consumers actual green purchase behavior Under what conditions will the consumers pay a premium price for green products What prompts consumers to choose green brands over traditional alternatives Will green consumption be a passing trend or a long term consumption habit What influences the frequency of consumers green purchasing Scholars are welcome to share their opinions and findings about green purchase behavior to help explore this research topic We are extremely interested in the determinants of green purchase behavior and the mechanism of facilitating green consumption considering different perspectives
