Contemporary African American Novelists A Bio Bibliographical Critical Sourcebook:

African American Authors, 1745-1945 Emmanuel S. Nelson, 2000-01-30 There has been a dramatic resurgence of interest in early African American writing Since the accidental rediscovery and republication of Harriet Wilson's Our Nig in 1983 the works of dozens of 19th and early 20th century black writers have been recovered and reprinted There is now a significant revival of interest in the Harlem Renaissance of the 1920s and in the last decade alone several major assessments of 18th and 19th century African American literature have been published Early African American literature builds on a strong oral tradition of songs folktales and sermons Slave narratives began to appear during the late 18th and early 19th century and later writers began to engage a variety of themes in diverse genres A central objective of this reference book is to provide a wide ranging introduction to the first 200 years of African American literature Included are alphabetically arranged entries for 78 black writers active between 1745 and 1945 Among these writers are essayists novelists short story writers poets playwrights and autobiographers Each entry is written by an expert contributor and provides a biography a discussion of major works and themes an overview of the author's critical reception and primary and secondary bibliographies The volume concludes with a selected general bibliography

The Cambridge Companion to the African American Novel Maryemma Graham, 2004-04-15 This Companion presents new essays covering the one hundred and fifty year history of the African American novel Contemporary African American Novelists Emmanuel S. Nelson, 1999-02-28 During the last two decades African American writers have emerged as a distinct and dominant force in world literature This force has been gathering momentum since the 1950s when James Baldwin published some of his most compelling works and Ralph Ellison stunned the literary establishment with his dazzling Invisible Man 1952 Empowered by the Civil Rights Movement and revitalized by the Black Arts Movement of the 1960s this force became more potent and pervasive The publication of Toni Morrison's The Bluest Eye in 1970 was a major event in the literary history of the United States With a voice as original as America itself she began to conquer the English language and redefine the international literary landscape Along with Morrison scores of African American writers have mapped bold new territories and firmly entrenched themselves in the forefront of contemporary American literature This reference book is a guide to the lives works and achievements of 79 contemporary African American novelists Through alphabetically arranged entries written by expert contributors this volume offers lively concise and current information about these writers Each entry begins with a biographical sketch of the author provides a judicious critical assessment of the author's major works and themes gives a representative sample of the critical responses the author's novels have elicited and concludes with a selected bibliography that lists the author's publications as well as useful secondary material Included are major figures such as Toni Morrison Alice Walker James Baldwin and Ralph Ellison There are also entries for many noteworthy but lesser known figures such as Tina McElroy Ansa Bebe Moore Campbell Randall Kenan Reginald McKnight Marita Golden and Arthur Flowers Some are popular writers with mass appeal such as Terri McMillan and Frank Yerby others such as Octavia E Butler are known for their science fiction Still others are distinguished poets or playwrights who have also published one or more significant novels Of the 79 novelists profiled 41 are women and roughly a dozen have identified themselves as gay lesbian or bisexual Thus the volume demonstrates the enormous diversity of these writers and the breadth of their contribution to world literature

Richard Wright Kenneth Kinnamon, 2014-11-04 African American writer Richard Wright 1908 1960 was celebrated during the early 1940s for his searing autobiography Black Boy and fiction Native Son By 1947 he felt so unwelcome in his homeland that he exiled himself and his family in Paris But his writings changed American culture forever and today they are mainstays of literature and composition classes He and his works are also the subjects of numerous critical essays and commentaries by contemporary writers This volume presents a comprehensive annotated bibliography of those essays books and articles from 1983 through 2003 Arranged alphabetically by author within years are some 8 320 entries ranging from unpublished dissertations to book length studies of African American literature and literary criticism Also included as an appendix are addenda to the author's earlier bibliography covering the years from 1934 through 1982 This is the exhaustive reference for serious students of Richard Wright and his critics
