Ireland: Looking East Christophe Gillissen, 2010 If Ireland's relations with the Western world have been the object of numerous scientific publications its links with the East have been neglected by research The aim of this book is to redress that imbalance by proposing studies of various aspects of Ireland's interactions with the East It is a multidisciplinary publication dealing with some of the historical political religious cultural demographic and sociological connections between Ireland both North and South and the East The chapters which offer novel perspectives for the field of Irish studies are organised in a chronological sequence from the mid 19th century to the present They focus on three main areas the links between Ireland and the Asian continent notably India China and Turkey its interactions with the Jewish people and the state of Israel and its relations with Eastern European countries in particular Poland and Lithuania

The Politics of the European Union Herman Lelieveldt, Sebastiaan Princen, 2011-05-19 A new introduction to the European Union which uses the lens of comparative politics This approach helps students understand the EU through comparisons with domestic politics and links with broader debates in political science The text is supported by numerous examples and chapters include briefings fact files and controversy boxes which highlight important information and controversial issues in EU politics to widen and deepen student understanding The authors have developed online Navigating the EU exercises that introduce students to useful sources of information on the internet and help them to analyse policy making in the EU This textbook is a comprehensive introduction to EU politics and covers history theory key institutions and participants as well as policies and policy making Political Data Handbook Jan-Erik Lane, David McKay, Kenneth Newton, 1996-12-26 This fully revised and updated edition of an established reference book provides in one volume the most comprehensive and detailed statistical guide available to the government and politics of the twenty four countries in the OECD There is no lack of statistical data about the OECD countries the nineteen countries of Western Europe together with Canada the United States Japan Australia and New Zealand but much of the material is hard to track down and little is available in comparative form The editors of the present volume have sifted through many hundreds of sources to select the essential facts and figures on population social structure employment the economy public finance government structures and political parties from 1950 to the present day In addition they provide social and economic background for each of the countries covered to enable the data to be put in context A short final section lists sources of further information The resulting combination is both invaluable and fascinating whether it is used casually to check up a fact or two or systematically to make detailed comparisons between the most advanced political systems of the Western world Judgment Under Uncertainty Daniel Kahneman, Paul Slovic, Amos Tversky, 1982-04-30 Thirty five chapters describe various judgmental heuristics and the biases they produce not only in laboratory experiments but in important social medical and political situations as well Most review multiple studies or entire subareas rather than describing single experimental studies European Affiliations or National Interests Yoo-Duk Kang, Korea Institute for International Economic Policy (South Korea), 2013-12-31 This paper reviews changes in role of European Parliament EP in EU's trade policy since the Lisbon Treaty The Treaty brought about important changes in EU governance and in particular strengthening of the role of the EP EP's competences in trade policy were also strengthened All trade agreements with third countries require a consent from the EP in the ratification procedure and all trade related legislations must be jointly decided by the Council and the EP This paper examines the determinants of voting patterns for EU's trade legislations including EU's Free Trade Agreements FTA with Korea and Colombia Peru The results confirm that Members of European Parliaments MEP still tend to vote with others in their political groups in trade legislations and their voting pattern is not very different from the previous pattern This trend is confirmed by both the comparison of intra voting cohesion index and the empirical test based on the probit model Country specific variables do not explain well the voting behavior of MEPs However it is noteworthy that some MEPs voted in line with their national interests in case of Korea EU FTA It is expected that influences of the EP on EU's trade policy would increase over time as MEPs realize their new powers and learn how to use it to reflect their opinion on EU's trade agenda As the EU expands its FTAs to the United States and Japan much larger trade partner than the EU ever negotiated more active involvements from the EP are expected This means that various interest groups such as trade associations and NGOs will attempt to exert greater influence on the European Parliament as well as the European Commission I Introduction II Role of European Parliament in the EU s Trade Policy 1 EU s Trade Policy and the EP s Involvement 2 Changes in EP s Competences after the Lisbon Treaty III Literature Review of Voting Patterns of European Parliament 1 The Voting Patterns of European Parliament 2 US Congressional Voting on Trade Policy IV Econometric Analyses 1 Trade Legislations Examined 2 Votes by Political Groups and Countries 3 Empirical Test of Votes Probit Model V Conclusion

EU Regulatory Decision Making and the Role of the United States Oliver Ziegler, 2012-09-05 Oliver Ziegler raises the question of what role economic interests of the United States play in the regulatory decision making process of the European Union Critics often assume that U S dominance in the world economy fueled by a powerful business elite has significantly affected EU regulations at the expense of environmental and consumer protection standards The author falsifies this proposition He shows first that the EU often adopts regulations against the explicit opposition of the U S thereby ignoring the principles of transatlantic regulatory cooperation Second he demonstrates that business interests in the EU are usually not homogenous and often come second to environmental and consumer concerns In addition the author shows the increasing role of the European Parliament in EU regulatory decision making

Political Institutions in Europe Josep Colomer, 2003-08-29 A clear accessible introduction to the institutional regimes of 15 countries in western Europe by an outstanding team of leading European political scientists Each chapter is devoted either to a single country or to a small group of countries allowing students to draw sophisticated comparisons of their political parties electoral systems and institutions of government at national regional and local level

A Democratic Audit of the European Union C. Lord, 2003-11-30 A Democratic Audit of the European Union provides a systematic assessment of democracy in the EU against clearly defined criteria Christopher Lord offers a double challenge to generalizations about a democratic deficit in the EU On the one hand it shows that standards of democratic performance in the EU may vary across Union institutions and decision making processes On the other hand it shows that they can vary across key dimensions of democratic governance including citizenship rights participation representation responsiveness transparency and accountability

Post-identity? Richard McMahon, 2013-06-26 Collective identity the emotionally powerful sense of belonging to a group is a crucial source of popular legitimacy for nations However efforts since the 1990s to politically support European integration by using identity mechanisms borrowed from nationalism have had very limited success European integration may require new post national approaches to the relationship between culture and politics This controversial and timely volume poses the logical question if identity doesn't effectively connect culture with European integration politics what does The book brings together leading scholars from several of the disciplines that have developed concepts of culture and methods of cultural research These expert interdisciplinary contributors apply a startling diversity of approaches to culture linking it to facets of integration as varied as external policy the democratic deficit economic dynamism and the geography of integration This book examines commonalities and connections within the European space as well as representations of these in identity discourses It will be useful for students and scholars of sociology geography anthropology social psychology political science and the history of European integration

Democratic Politics in the European Parliament Simon Hix, Abdul G. Noury, Gérard Roland, 2007-04-19 With the European Parliament comprising politicians from many different countries cultures languages national parties and institutional backgrounds one might expect politics in the Parliament to be highly fragmented and unpredictable By studying more than 12 000 recorded votes between 1979 and 2004 this 2007 book establishes that the opposite is in fact true transnational parties in the European Parliament are highly cohesive and the classic left right dimension dominates voting behaviour Furthermore the cohesion of parties in the European Parliament has increased as the powers of the Parliament have increased The authors suggest that the main reason for these developments is that like minded MEPs have incentives to form stable transnational party organizations and to use these organizations to compete over European Union policies They suggest that this is a positive development for the future of democratic accountability in the European Union

Political Economy of Transition and Development Nauro F. Campos, Jan Fidrmuc, 2003-11-30 Political Economy of Transition and Development collects the proceedings of an international conference that brought the leading thinkers in this field to the Center for European Integration Studies of the University of Bonn in May 2002 The contributions analyze the various interactions between institutions policy choices economic developments and political outcomes in transition and developing countries The first five chapters give a relatively broad assessment of the various reform paths and outcomes in the transition and developing countries The remaining eight chapters proceed to analyze important aspects of transition such as voting behavior political regime choice corruption social capital growth and inequality and EU enlargement The resulting volume thus combines a bird s eye perspective with a relatively narrow focus on selected key issues pertaining to the ongoing transition process in Central and Eastern Europe
