Contemporary American Family A Dialectical Perspective On Communication And Relationships:

The Contemporary American Family Teresa Chandler Sabourin, 2003-04-07 I find the book extremely attractive The dialectical perspective provides a consistent avenue from which to address the diversity structural cultural developmental and functional in Contemporary American Families Whereas this perspective does not claim to solve the tensions in families it offers marvelous insights into the nature and changing diversities in families I believe this text is particularly well suited for reasonable discussion of serious issues and provides valuable insights into the nature of families and their functioning Vince Bloom California State University Fresno Teresa Chandler Sabourin invites students to appreciate the mystery complexity and diversity of the contemporary American family Resisting simplistic descriptions and normative descriptions Sabourin challenges us to open our minds and hearts to the rich humane variety of family connections as we search for ways to accommodate the competing demands and conflicting pressures experienced in our most cherished relationships Starting from the source of her own experience Sabourin addresses both the darker abusive side of family relationships as well as the lighter spiritual side of intimacy and love The Contemporary American Family successfully addresses the need for an accessible and teachable treatment of the dialectical perspective on close relationships This is a book that will encourage students of family communication to respect diversity question taken for granted assumptions and share the pain and joy and of their own family experiences Art Bochner University of South Florida Increasingly diverse in structure and culture contemporary families defy explanation by many traditional linear methods In order to understand the enormous impact that diversity has on the behaviors and relationships within the family scholars and students need a means to embrace rather than solve relational contradictions The Contemporary American Family A Dialectical Perspective on Communication and Relationships recognizes that families are both close and distant stable and changing amenable and uncontrollable Teresa Chandler Sabourin employs a dialectical approach acknowledging that a family's contradictions and relational tensions may be the determining factor in its interaction Writing in a direct and simple style Sabourin uses this innovative theoretical position to address four types of family diversity structural cultural developmental and functional Sure to stimulate discussion and further research this provocative volume examines The dialectic process in the context of family communication and relationships The redefined more inclusive American family Contemporary family structures Cultural diversity in the family Issues such as alcoholism domestic violence and divorce Spirituality within the family Designed as a supplemental text for upper level undergraduate and graduate courses in Family Communication The Contemporary American Family is also an invaluable resource for students in Family Studies and Women's Studies courses

Managing Conflict in a Negotiated World Peter M. Kellett, Diana G. Dalton, 2001-03-30 Peter Kellett and Diana Dalton set out in this text to address the question: How do people manage conflict effectively? This is a simple question with an elusive and complex answer. To determine how to manage conflict, one must first understand the meaning of conflict for those engaged in it. The authors do this by presenting a step-by-step guide to describing, interpreting, understanding, and managing conflict. Using real-life narratives, they explain how and why conflict occurs and strategies that one can deploy to manage the conflict. These interpretive and dialogic skills are illustrated clearly through the pairing of personal narratives with relevant discussion questions and challenging exercises. The first part of the book aims to equip readers with the ability to collect, analyze, and learn from conflicts from the perspective of developing more dialogic relationships. The second part enables the reader to apply this interpretive process to several communication contexts. With their thorough coverage of conflict management issues and their engaging writing style, Peter Kellett and Diana Dalton compel readers to examine their own conflicts for opportunities to learn, grow, communicate, and change.

Indirect Parenting Interventions, Neuroscience and the Parent-Child Relationship Thomas W. Roberts, 2024-10-21 This volume explores indirect parenting behavior that changes the structure of the parent-child relationship, examining the ecological dimension of parenting in addition to nurturance and control. Drawing on neuroscientific research in parenting, it provides a model for how children learn implicitly and how parents can relate to children through indirect means. Roberts argues that first-order parenting techniques (teaching specific behaviors to reduce unwanted child behaviors) are overused. He examines and offers guidance on how indirect interventions that place emphasis on the interactional components of the parent-child relationship, such as modelling, storytelling reframing humor and paradox can support parents and children in developing positive relationships Addresses the latest brain research and its application to parent child interactions Introduces the student to aspects of the parent child relationship that are not covered in most courses Useful to clinicians who work directly with parents Offers a perspective on parenting that differs from most parenting models Facilitates awareness of how unconscious and nonverbal communication affects parenting Serves to deepen the relationship with the child and curb unwanted behavior Indirect Parenting Interventions Neuroscience and the Parent Child Relationship will be thought provoking reading for students and scholars of parenting and family systems as well as clinicians who work directly with parents giving them a broader perspective in dealing with parent child interactions
