Religion in Modern Islamic Discourse Abdulkader Tayob, 2009 Religion is central to any religious discourse but religion as an analytical category that facilitates the reexamination and reinvention of a particular religious tradition is more difficult to locate This task is made particularly difficult in Islam where the lines demarcating religion culture civilization and politics are deliberately ambiguous and fuzzy The objective of this book is to identify and examine the place of religion as such an abstract category in modern Islamic discussions from the nineteenth century to the present It shows how ideas of religion facilitated the transformation of religious discourses both when accepting and resisting modernity The central focus is on intellectuals who grappled with reconciling Islam with successive waves of modernization Religion in Modern Islamic Discourse begins with early discussions in Egypt and colonial India on the essence of religion and its social value in the light of modern challenges in science and politics It then moves from these discussions and explores key contributions by twentieth century Muslim intellectuals on the meaning of identity state law and gender Above all Abdulkader Tayob offers the reader a creative way of understanding modern Islamic discourse uncovering the deep structural foundations of its approach to religion religious values and spirituality

Feminism, Tradition and Change in Contemporary Islam Shehnaz Haqqani,2024-10-17 The Islamic tradition has always been flexible changing over time and constantly adapting to the different societies Muslims find themselves in Few Muslims today would abide by the fatwa against the printing press under the Ottomans Moreover although Islamic law legislates for slavery and child marriage only a vanishing minority of Muslims consider these practices acceptable today and some will even argue that Islam never permitted them Yet some issues like the prohibition on female led prayer and female interfaith marriage seem curiously impervious to change Why is that Through a mixture of interviews with ordinary Muslims in Texas and critical analysis of contemporary and historical scholarship Shehnaz Haqqani demonstrates the gendered dimensions of change and negotiation in Islamic tradition She argues that a reliance on a mostly male scholarly consensus means that the tradition preserves male privilege at the expense of justice for Muslim women
