Studies in the Rhetoric of Fiction Ana-Karina Schneider, 2015-09-18 Studies in the Rhetoric of Fiction investigates the contemporary novel's relation to its forerunners the picaresques romances and sentimental novels of the 18th century Henry Fielding Laurence Sterne and Jane Austen are stable landmarks while of the contemporary practitioners a handful recur from one chapter to the next particularly Julian Barnes Ian McEwan and Kazuo Ishiguro The chapters share an interest in the rhetoric of fiction broadly understood as the way in which fictional works achieve their effects on readers whether by directly addressing a hypothetical reader using irony and parody orchestrating competitions between divergent narratives imitating musical structures inviting intertextual readings or openly taking issue with traditional conventions and expectations Chapters focusing on narrative strategy and metanarrative comment therefore alternate with those interrogating reading practices and readerly participation in the rhetorical interchange This collection of essays however does not propose a consistent theory of the rhetoric of fiction nor does it claim any generalisable validity for its findings Rather it consists of a series of readings that address various formal aspects of the novels they focus on showing rhetoric in action pointing out the complex ways in which its means and strategies change in time and across genres and media It restores a sense that whatever old tricks the author or narrator is perceived to be up to they are an invitation to the reader to take part in the fun The book will appeal to students and scholars in the early stages of their research encouraging readings that identify rhetorical strategies that challenge conventional forms and expectations It is therefore largely free of rhetorical terminology making sparing use of it when distinctions must be drawn and the more technical aspects of novels

Nobel Writers on Writing Ottar G. Draugsvold, 2000 When in 1901 Alfred Nobel bequeathed to the world the funds to support the Nobel Prize one of his few directives for the category of literature was that the artists selected be of idealistic tendency Since its inception the prize has given a very public voice to some of the world's greatest writers and their responses to the honor their acceptance speeches have themselves often been epochal within each author's body of literature From the famed call to arms by William Faulkner to the multicultural song of Derek Walcott from 1903's Bjørnstjerne Bjørnson to 1999's Günter Grass this collection traces the ideals of the artists and the selection committee itself throughout the entirety of the 20th century Interestingly writes Draugsvold none of the writers discuss the more technical aspects of their craft Equally striking is the strength of the common thread of idealism found in these addresses a firm belief in humankind and the power of art in its role in the service of truth and the service of liberty as Albert Camus said in 1957 I decline to accept the end of man wrote the Old Man William Faulkner The speeches presented here were chosen not by subjective but rather by substantive criteria with biographical presentations and brief statements of gratitude omitted Included are an introduction to each of the 28 writers chosen an excerpted copy of the speech or lecture and a bibliography of works in English The work concludes with a complete list of prize winners in literature and a bibliography of sources cited in the writer's introductions
