Stapleton, 2016-05-23 Contributions to this volume explore the idea of Marlowe as a working artist in keeping with John Addington Symonds characterization of him as a sculptor poet Throughout the body of his work including not only the poems and plays but also his forays into translation and imitation a distinguished company of established and emerging literary scholars traces how Marlowe conceives an idea shapes and refines it then remakes and remodels it only to refashion it further in his writing process These essays necessarily overlap with one another in the categories of lives stage and page which signals their interdependent nature regarding questions of authorship theater and performance history as well as interpretive issues within the works themselves The contributors interpret and analyze the disputed facts of Marlowe's life the textual difficulties that emerge from the staging of his plays the critical investigations arising from analyses of individual works and their relationship to those of his contemporaries The collection engages in new ways the controversies and complexities of its subject's life and art It reflects the flourishing state of Marlowe studies as it shapes the twenty first century conception of the poet and playwright as master craftsman

Time, Narrative, and Emotion in Early Modern England David Houston Wood, 2016-02-24 Exploiting a link between early modern concepts of the medical and the literary David Houston Wood suggests that the recent critical attention to the gendered classed and raced elements of the embodied early modern subject has been hampered by its failure to acknowledge the role time and temporality play within the scope of these admittedly crucial concerns Wood examines the ways that depictions of time expressed in early modern medical texts reveal themselves in contemporary literary works demonstrating that the early modern recognition of the self as a palpably volatile entity viewed within the tenets of contemporary medical treatises facilitated the realistic portrayal of literary characters and served as a structuring principle for narrative experimentation The study centers on four canonical early modern texts notorious among scholars for their structural that is narrative or temporal difficulties Wood displays the cogency of such analysis by working across a range of generic boundaries from the prose romance of Philip Sidney's Arcadia to the staged plays of William Shakespeare's Othello and The Winter's Tale to John Milton's stubborn reliance upon humoral theory in shaping his brief epic or closet drama Samson Agonistes As well as adding a new dimension to the study of authors and texts that remain central to early modern English literary culture the author proposes a new method for analyzing the conjunction of character emotion and narrative structure that will serve as a model for future scholarship in the areas of historicist formalist and critical temporal studies

Thomas Middleton and Early Modern Textual Culture Gary Taylor, John Lavagnino, 2007 Thomas Middleton and Early Modern Textual Culture is a comprehensive companion to The Collected Works of Thomas Middleton providing detailed introductions to and full editorial apparatus for the works themselves as well as a wealth of information about Middleton's historical and literary context
