Contemporary Public Sculpture Tradition Transformation And Controversy:

Contemporary Public Sculpture Harriet Senie, 1992 In the twentieth century public sculpture has changed almost beyond recognition Works inspired by classical and Renaissance traditions imposing equestrian monuments and triumphal arches have been replaced by works such as Claes Oldenburg's Clothespin and Christo's Running Fence This break from tradition has led to radically different approaches to public sculpture but not without bitter controversy within both the art community and the general public Contemporary Public Sculpture offers the first comprehensive look at this highly diverse and often controversial branch of modern art Beginning with the revival of public sculpture in the 1960s with the work of Picasso Calder Moore Nevelson and others Senie traces the developments that defined a new civic art one which substituted the artist's fame for public content and sparked debates about cost the role of government and the place of public art in a democratic society She shows how the growing irrelevance of traditional memorials resulted in a new approach to the genre defined by Maya Lin's Vietnam Veterans Memorial which set out to heal a nation rather than glorify a military event by honoring victims rather than heroes and how dissatisfaction with modern glass box architecture and its surrounding barren urban spaces led architectural firms like Skidmore Owings and she explores works by George Sugarman and Scott Burton that combine sculpture and furniture changing the very idea of public art by creating a stage for public life Finally she examines the controversies that arise when citizens including the press and politicians confront publicly funded work such as Joel Shapiro's Headless Gumby or Serra's Tilted Arc that defies their sense of what public sculpture should be Illustrated with over one hundred halftones this overview of contemporary public sculpture provides a clear understanding of why it is there why it looks the way it does and what is really at stake in the continuing public art controversy

Unhuman Culture Daniel Cottom, 2013-05-23 It is widely acknowledged that the unhuman plays a significant role in the definition of humanity in contemporary thought It appears in the thematization of the Other in philosophical psychoanalytic anthropological and postcolonial studies and shows up in the antihumanism associated with figures such as Heidegger Foucault and Derrida One might trace its genealogy as Freud did to the Copernican Darwinian and psychoanalytic revolutions that displaced humanity from the center of the universe Or as Karl Marx and others suggested one might lose human identity in the face of economic technological political and ideological forces and structures With dazzling breadth wit and intelligence Unhuman Culture ranges over literature art and theory ancient to postmodern to explore the ways in which contemporary culture defines humanity in terms of all that it is not Daniel Cottom is equally at home reading medieval saints' lives and the fiction of Angela Carter plumbing the implications of Napoleon's self-coronation and the attacks of 9/11 considering the paintings of Pieter Bruegel and the plastic surgery as performance of the body artist Orlan For Cottom the unhuman does not necessarily signify the inhuman in the sense of conspicuous or extraordinary cruelty It embraces too the superhuman the supernatural the demonic and the subhuman the supposedly disjunctive animal vegetable and mineral kingdoms the realms of artifice technology and fantasy It plays a role in theoretical discussions of the sublime personal memoirs of the Holocaust aesthetic reflections on technology economic discourses on globalization and popular accounts of terrorism Whereas it once may have seemed that the concept of culture always by definition pertained to humanity it now may seem impossible to avoid the realization that we must look at things differently It is not only art in the narrow sense of the word that we must recognize as unhuman For better or worse ours is now an unhuman culture

Federal Building United States Courthouse, Youngstown, Ohio ,2002      United States History James Warren Oberly,1995      The Politics of Acknowledgement Joanna R. Quinn,2011-01-01 Human rights violations leave deep scars on people societies and nations Since the early 1990s international rights groups have argued that resolving the violence of the past through instruments of transitional justice such as truth commissions is a necessary condition for a peaceful future But how can nations ensure that these tribunals are the best path to reconciliation The Politics of Acknowledgement develops a theoretical framework of acknowledgement with which to evaluate truth commissions Rather than applying this framework to successful tribunals Joanna Quinn uses it to analyze the difficulties encountered and the ultimate failure of two poorly understood truth commissions in Uganda and Haiti The failure of these commissions reveals that if reconciliation is to be achieved acknowledgement of past violence and harm by both victims and perpetrators must come before goals such as forgiveness social trust civic engagement and social cohesion      Design Thinking for Interiors Joy H. addresses their needs in the critical time between the murder of their loved ones and the completion of the permanent memorial She also observes that the memorials discussed herein are inadvertently based on strategies of diversion and denial that direct our attention away from actual events and reframe tragedy as secular or religious triumph In doing so they camouflage history and seen as an aggregate they define a nation of victims exactly the concept they and their accompanying celebratory narratives were apparently created to obscure      Patricia Johanson and the Re-invention of Public
