Adelman, 2012-12-06 The idea of the present sixth volume in the Boston College Studies in Philosophy entitled Contemporary Chinese Philosophy was conceived by the editor several years ago before the current resumption of Chinese American political and economic amity occurred officially Several preceding volumes in this series had studied various aspects of Marxism especially Soviet Marxism Possibilities for dialogue between Christians and Marxists were discussed not only in the series but elsewhere too in various philosophical journals and books through the sixties and seventies It was only a natural outcome then to wonder about the same possibilities in regard to Chinese Marxism Hence I sent off to many potential contributors scholars in the field the following proposal seeking papers for a volume on Contemporary Chinese Philosophy The themes that should constitute the content of the articles were as follows 1 How rigidly do contemporary Chinese adhere to Marxism Leninism Naturally this means principally the educated persons but it might include the non academic segment of the people By Marxism Leninism here I mean the contemporary Soviet brand Hence I do not mean Marx's early writings or the developments of people like Kolakowski 2 Are they constrained to think in a kind of horizontal materialism or are they open to a species of transcendence that might include the God problem or a belief in another life after this one on earth 3 Studies on Contemporary Chinese Philosophy (1949-2009) Qiyong GUO, 2018-01-29 Guo Qiyong's edited volume on contemporary Chinese philosophy offers a detailed look at research on Chinese philosophy published from 1949-2009 in Mainland China and Taiwan The chapters in this volume are broken down into either major themes or time periods in the history of Chinese philosophy In each chapter after summarizing significant aspects of a particular theme or time period lists are drawn up of the most important works along with comments on their individual contributions This volume allows readers to both familiarize themselves with specific texts and become immersed in the more general philosophical discourse surrounding the history of Chinese philosophy It provides an in depth look into serious debates and major discoveries in Chinese language philosophical scholarship from 1949-2009 Contemporary Chinese Philosophy F J Adelman, 1982-11-30 The Mutual Cultivation of Self and Things Yang Guorong, 2016-04-15 Yang Guorong is one of the most prominent Chinese philosophers working today and is best known for using the full range of Chinese philosophical resources in connection with the thought of Kant Hegel Marx and Heidegger In The Mutual Cultivation of Self and Things Yang grapples with the philosophical problem of how the complexly interwoven nature of things and being relates to human nature values affairs and facts and ultimately creates a world of meaning Yang
