Contemporary Challenges in Autoimmunity, Volume 1173 Yehuda Shoenfeld, M. Eric Gershwin, 2009-10-05 This volume features key presentations from the 6th International Congress of Autoimmunity The International Congress of Autoimmunity has become established as one of the major meetings in the field of immunology with presentations covering every aspect of basic research in the hopes of clarifying pathogenesis of autoimmune disease as well as providing information on the latest innovations in biological and other modes of treatment The goal of this volume is to present cutting edge research that focuses in particular on newer diagnostic tools and newer therapies for human autoimmune disease NOTE Annals volumes are available for sale as individual books or as a journal For information on institutional journal subscriptions please visit www.blackwellpublishing.com/nyas ACADEMY MEMBERS Please contact the New York Academy of Sciences directly to place your order www.nyas.org Members of the New York Academy of Science receive full text access to the Annals online and discounts on print volumes Please visit <http://www.nyas.org/MemberCenter/Join.aspx> for more information about becoming a member Contemporary Topics in Immunobiology Michael Hanna, 2012-12-06 It has long been suspected and recently confirmed that there is an etiologic relationship between several viruses and naturally occurring neoplasias Virus precursors in the form of nucleic acids or antigens have consistently been associated with certain neoplasias However the role of these virus specified precursors in etiology remains obscure Recent studies of virus associated neoplasias have led to advances in molecular techniques which have yielded increasingly sensitive assays for detection of virus specific nucleic acids and which have enabled the disruption of virus particles without concomitant loss in antigenicity of the components These procedures have in turn resulted in molecular probes that allow more definitive evaluation of the host response to its virus and to the tumor cell with which the virus or its precursors are associated Evaluations of the immune response and status of the host have provided important information about carcinogenesis and the tools for seroepidemiological studies of a variety of cancers These seroepidemiological studies have demonstrated that several human cancers e g Burkitt's lymphoma and nasopharyngeal carcinoma are probably virus induced and that antibodies that are diagnostic and prognostic for these diseases are detectable The conclusion that feline leukemia is a disease transmitted horizontally by a virus resulted primarily from immunological experiments
