Continental Shelf:

The Regulation of Continental Shelf Development Myron H. Nordquist, John Norton Moore, Aldo Chircop, Ronán Long, 2013-08-22 The lack of international conventional law governing the operational aspects of continental shelf activity may be characterized as unfinished business of the UN Convention on the Law of the Sea The Convention adopted in 1982 generally addressed the issue but did not consider more detailed development of the legal regime for the continental shelf In The Regulation of Continental Shelf Development Rethinking International Standards leading experts from around the world identify and explore a multitude of unresolved legal concerns related to the continental shelf The current state of continental shelf activities is explored through the following lenses Contemporary uses including an overview on offshore wind energy in the EU an analysis of the use of submarine cables under UNCLOS and a discussion of the varied potential for mining marine materials Emerging challenges such as ISA seabed mining standards the recent ITLOS decision regarding the Bay of Bengal and the role of the IMO in establishing safety standards for transboundary effects of oil pollution for offshore platforms Comparative best practices in environmental regulation Probabilistic risk assessment with a thorough definition of PRA and a critical examination of continental shelf disasters Decommissioning offshore installations and structures including an overview of the global regime as particularly provided in Articles 60 3 and 80 of UNCLOS Liability and compensation and finally Unfinished business on UNCLOS III The varied voices of experts collected within The Regulation of Continental Shelf Development Rethinking International Standards offer a timely understanding of past present and future issues related to the continental shelf The volume is a must read for all those interested in environmental law and the law of the sea The Continental Shelf Beyond 200 Nautical Miles Joanna Mossop, 2016 This book discusses states rights and obligations concerning the extended continental shelf in international law including protecting the marine environment and regulating activities such as fishing marine bioprospecting and exploitation of non living resources Continental Shelf Limits P. J. Cook, Chris Carleton, 2000 Setting the scene introduction the United Nations convention o the law of the sea Methodology historical methods of positioning at sea Establish the case the practical realization of the continental shelf limit Other issues deep sea fan issues Outer Continental Shelf United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs, 1953 Considers legislation to establish Interior Dept jurisdiction over Outer Continental Shelf lands and mineral rights and to require that offshore leasing revenues be used for national defense and education aid programs The Regime for the Exploitation of Transboundary Marine Fisheries Resources Ellen Hey, 1989 The Law of the Sea Tullio Treves, Laura Pineschi, 1997-01-01 The United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 10 December 1982 entered into force on 16 November 1994 Since this date a single binding instrument has regulated the rights and duties of States at sea and regarding the sea New concepts such as the exclusive economic zone archipelagic waters transit passage through straits and the International Seabed Area are now fully recognized The fifteen member States of the European Union are a significant sample for analyzing the practice of States or at least that of the Western industrialized States as regards the law of the sea They include major and small maritime powers coastal and land locked States States with coasts on the Atlantic Ocean and States with coasts on semi enclosed seas such as the Baltic and the Mediterranean States with and without involvement in deep seabed mining and States with different interests as regards fisheries The fact that they all belong to the European Union is a very important common feature which amply justifies the choice made to study them together The book's aim is to give through essays prepared by well known specialists a detailed survey of the attitudes and practice concerning the law of the sea of the member States of the European Union and of the European Community as such The common positions of the member States and the results of their coordinated action also emerge from these essays The fact that the member States and the European Community are now actively engaged in the process of becoming parties to the Law of the Sea Convention is certainly a major contribution to the consolidation of the Convention as a universal instrument or at least as an instrument widely ratified by States of all continents and economic and political interests Geological Survey Circular ,1983

The Law of the Sea Nele Matz-Lück, Øystein Jensen, Elise Johansen, 2022-09-19 The United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea follows a comprehensive approach and can be interpreted dynamically to include the regulation of all potential human uses of the ocean but the law of the sea cannot be viewed in isolation from other fields of international law International law does not resemble a hierarchically structured legal system its different parts interact when different rules address the same activity or situation The academic discussion concerning the specialization and proliferation of international legal rules and dispute settlement bodies has theoretical as well as practical relevance for the law of the sea and its interaction with other parts of international law The intensified use of the oceans for different purposes and the ongoing proliferation of international rules addressing different activities from different perspectives and with distinct foci require a more thorough evaluation of how the law of the sea relates to other fields of international law how the normative context can be approached theoretically and if interdisciplinary interfaces can be adequately addressed This book discusses the normative context of the law of the sea and the interactions of the law of the sea with other legal regimes By connecting high quality research with new ideas and perspectives this book offers expertise from different fields and perspectives in which the interaction between the law of the sea and other fields of international law becomes particularly relevant Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications ,1993

The Designation of Marine

Protected Areas Anna von Rebay,2023-05-23 This book provides empirical evidence that all States have a universally binding obligation to adopt national laws and international treaties to protect the marine environment including the designation of Marine Protected Areas Chapter by chapter this obligation is detailed providing the foundation for holding States responsible for fulfilling this obligation The fundamentals are analysed in a preliminary chapter which examines the legally binding sources of the Law of the Sea as well as its historical development to help readers understand the key principles at hand The Law of the Sea provides more than 1000 instruments and more than 300 regulations concerning marine protection While the scope of most treaties is limited either regarding species regions or activities one regulation addresses States in all waters the obligation to protect and preserve the marine environment as stipulated under Art 192 of the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea UNCLOS As this Constitution of the Ocean not only contains conventional laws but also very broadly reflects pre existing rules of customary international law an extensive analysis of all statements made by States in the UN General Assembly their practices national laws and regulations as well as other public testimonials demonstrates that Art 192 UNCLOS indeed binds the whole community of States as a rule of customary international law with an erga omnes effect Due to the lack of any objections and its fundamental value for humankind this regulation can also be considered a new peremptory norm of international law ius cogens While the sovereign equality of States recognises States freedom to decide if and how to enter into a given obligation States can also waive this freedom If States accepted a legally binding obligation they are thus bound to it Concerning the specific content of Art 192 UNCLOS a methodical interpretation concludes that only the adoption of legislative measures national laws and international agreements suffices to comply with the obligation to protect and preserve the marine environment which is confirmed by the States practices and relevant jurisprudence When applied to a specific geographical area legislative measures to protect the marine environment concur with the definition of Marine Protected Areas Nonetheless as the obligation applies to all waters the Grotian principle of the freedom of the sea dictates that the restriction of activities through the designation of Marine Protected Areas on the one hand must be weighed against the freedoms of other States on the other To anticipate the result while all other rights under the UNCLOS are subject to and contingent on other regulations of the UNCLOS and international law only the obligation to protect and preserve the marine environment is granted absolutely and thus outweighs all other interests

Antarctic Earth Science R. L. Oliver,P. R. James,J. B. Jago,1983 The fourth international symposium on Antarctic Earth Sciences took place in Adelaide South Australia during the week 16 20 August 1982 This volume contains a record of the centenary activities celebrating Sir Douglas Mawson and the one hundred and seventy four papers that were presented by delegates for discussion over the five days Sir Douglas Mawson was part of the first team to reach the magnetic South Pole a leading geologist and scientific figure during the heroic age of of antarctic exploration The papers presented during the symposium were divided into fifteen categories covering east and west Antarctica marine land and glacial geology plate tectonics islands peninsulas climatic change and Precambrian and Cenozoic era activity The two hundred persons from sixteen countries who attended the symposium brought together a wide range of the most current expertise and research to share of which this volume provides a record      Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1978-04
