The Continuity of Mind Michael Spivey Professor of Psychology Cornell University, 2008-06-30

The cognitive and neural sciences have been on the brink of a paradigm shift for over a decade. The traditional information processing framework in psychology with its computer metaphor of the mind is still considered to be the mainstream approach but dynamical systems accounts of mental activity are now receiving a more rigorous treatment allowing them to move beyond merely brandishing trendy buzzwords. The Continuity of the Mind will help to galvanize the forces of dynamical systems theory, cognitive and computational neuroscience, connectionism and ecological psychology that are needed to complete this paradigm shift.

In The Continuity of the Mind, Michael Spivey lays bare the fact that comprehending a spoken sentence, understanding a visual scene or just thinking about the day's events involves the serial coalescing of different neuronal activation patterns, i.e. a state space trajectory that flirts with a series of point attractors. As a result, the brain cannot help but spend most of its time instantiating patterns of activity that are in between identifiable mental states rather than in them. When this scenario is combined with the fact that most cognitive processes are richly embedded in their environmental context in real time, the state space in which brief visitations of attractor basins are your thoughts suddenly encompasses not just neuronal dimensions but extends to biomechanical and environmental dimensions as well. As a result, your moment by moment experience of the world around you even right now can be described as a continuous trajectory through a high dimensional state space that is comprised of diverse mental states.

Spivey has arranged The Continuity of the Mind to present a systematic overview of how perception, cognition and action are partially overlapping segments of one continuous mental flow rather than three distinct mental systems. The initial chapters provide empirical demonstrations of the gray areas in mental activity that happen in between discretely labeled mental events as well as geometric visualizations of attractors in state space that make the dynamical systems framework seem less mathematically abstract. The middle chapters present scores of behavioral and neurophysiological studies that portray the continuous temporal dynamics inherent in categorization, language comprehension, visual perception as well as attention, action and reasoning. The final chapters conclude with discussions of what the mind itself must look like if its activity is continuous in time and its contents are distributed in state space.
