interpretive phenomenology study II and conventional content analysis study III Study IV was a case study regarding a qualitative improvement collaborative QIC designed to improve contraceptive counselling and services Three multi professional teams involved in abortion care participated in the QIC and two women provided user experience input Both qualitative and quantitative data were collected and analysed Results The findings of the thesis are organised into three themes I Women and HPs described contraceptive counselling at the time of an abortion as an often complex meeting There was scepticism about contraceptive methods and limited receptivity to information among women Respectful counselling facilitated women s choice of contraceptive method even if they were sceptical and found the situation emotionally charged II Women s choices need for guidance and access to the contraceptive methods was described in the second theme Choice of oral contraceptives OC dominated Overall 25% of the women experienced repeat abortion during followup Women who chose long acting reversible contraception LARC experienced fewer repeat abortions compared to women who chose OC Both women and HPs reported barriers in access to LARC post abortion III In a Quality Improvement Collaborative QIC two volunteering women provided user experience input HPs participating in this QIC reported strengthened skills in counselling and enhanced ability to evaluate their performance Despite the team s prediction that they would reach the QIC goal that 50% of women would start LARC within 30 days post abortion and the fact that a majority of the women in QIC units chose LARC none of the teams managed to reach the goal primarily due to insufficient capacity for timely initiation of LARC Conclusion The findings suggest that women need respectful counselling and guidance at the time of an abortion Access to a range of contraceptive methods particularly LARC is important to prevent repeat UPs There is room for further improvement in offering coordinated and timely access for women who choose LARC and to evaluate counselling in the present settings

Sexuality and Disability Elaine Cooper, John Guillebaud, 2017-12-02 Sexuality is an integral part of every person but it is often difficult for people with a physical and or learning disability to express their sexuality as they wish This book provides a clear explanation of the issues concerning sexuality and disability for all professionals working in these sensitive areas

A Thematic Guide to Documents on Health and Human Rights Gudmundur Alfredsson, Katarina Tomaševski, 2023-09-20 This publication is the second volume of Thematic Human Rights Guides published under the auspices of the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law The aim of the Guides as the title implies is to facilitate the use of international human rights standards by their systematic presentation Rather than reproducing full texts of various instruments substantive standards are grouped according to subject matter in order to enable users to quickly and easily locate the topic they may be looking for A detailed index with references to the many international instruments which address the same issue reinforces this thematic approach The choice of human rights and health for the second volume in this series highlights the aim of the Guides to map out the entire range of human rights and fundamental freedoms as they relate to a specific topic The sheer size of this volume illustrates the number and variety of human rights standards relevant for health Many of these standards have been generated by organizations dealing with health rather than human rights and quite a few are found under medical ethics rather than human rights Subsuming medical ethics under international human rights law is a novel development pioneered by the Council of Europe Elsewhere the two fields remain separate and the publication of this Guide is intended to overcome this separation Documents have been included which provide an understanding of human rights within the health profession such as guidance to medical doctors with regard to abortion adopted by the International Medical Association and those human rights safeguards that have been elaborated to prevent abuses by health professionals such as those concerning mental health All of these standards provide a substantive background for inter professional dialogue on the evolving understanding of human rights A Thematic Guide to Documents on Health and Human Rights reflects the full range of issues encompassed by human rights and health Besides the right to health a wide range of rights and freedoms can be and is affected by the health sector Priority has been accorded to the crucial human rights safeguards namely those specifying protection against undue limitations or restrictions upon human rights Much as with any other human rights topic those safeguards are best developed for categories that are most vulnerable to denials and violations of their rights Detainees prisoners victims of armed conflicts children and the mentally ill thus figure prominently
