Contract Cohabitation:

Contract Cohabitation Edmund L. Van Deusen, 1974      Cohabitation Great Britain: Law Commission, 2006-05-31 This consultation paper considers options for reform of the current law in relation to the property and financial rights of cohabiting couples either opposite sex or same sex couples when a relationship ends. Although the paper does discuss the situation in relation to when one of the partners dies, it focuses on whether a new scheme is needed to provide financial remedies on separation when a relationship breaks down. Amongst the provisional proposals, the Committee identifies the need for the introduction of new statutory remedies to address the separation of cohabiting couples who have children; however, the situation for cohabitants without children is found to raise more difficult social policy questions and the views of consultees are sought about their eligibility within the proposed scheme. Other proposals include that courts should be given discretion in determining financial claims on separation rather than having fixed rules for property division based on principles of the contributions of both parties to the joint household and to the welfare of dependent children both before and after separation, with the provision for an opt out agreement for couples under the proposed statutory scheme. Responses to the proposals should be received by 30th September 2006 and a final report is due to be published by August 2007. An overview document summarising the key issues considered is available separately ISBN 011730266X      Do We Need a Cohabitation Agreement? Michael G. Cochrane, 2010-05-14 You're committed, you're moving in together and you're blending your households. But are you forgetting something? Many Canadians find themselves in common law relationships and think that they aren't any different from a legal marriage. It can be a shock to find out that when the going gets tough, certain rights under the law, not to mention financial obligations, do or do not apply. For instance, if one common law partner becomes seriously ill or passes away, will the other be able to access joint bank accounts? Their shared home? What happens if there is no will? And what about the kids? These are some of the many serious questions that couples need to consider before sharing their lives, all of which can be addressed in a cohabitation agreement. A cohabitation agreement allows a couple to make sure their partner and any children are taken care of in times of need or crisis; that ownership in properties or financial resources are clear; combined, separated or protected. Most of all, these contracts allow for the peace of mind that comes with having a game plan in place should the relationship end due to death or separation. Take the advice of Michael Cochrane, a lawyer with more than 30 years of experience, and consider the numerous issues that can affect a common law relationship. Do We Need a Cohabitation Agreement is written in clear, nontechnical language and includes real life examples based on Canadian cases. Cochrane addresses critical issues such as wills and estates, powers of attorney, the special concerns of step families and same sex couples, and how to have this discussion with your partner. It will also help you work in a cost effective way with a lawyer should you decide that an agreement will benefit your relationship. This is your future together.
