DEFRA Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2009-07-07 A Site of Special Scientific Interest SSSI is an area of land containing habitats and wildlife which are of national or international importance There are over 4 000 SSSI sites in England protected through restrictions on activities and development which would adversely affect the sites In 2000 the Department agreed a Public Service Agreement PSA target to bring 95 per cent of SSSI land area into a favourable or recovering condition by December 2010

The reported condition of sites has increased from 52 per cent of land area in target condition in December 2002 to 86 per cent in February 2009 The programme of SSSI condition assessments is not up to date and Natural England has put in place a programme of work to address the backlog of assessments by 2010 and has introduced quality assurance systems and guidelines to improve the consistency of its record keeping Public expenditure on SSSIs has more than doubled over the past eight years from 35.6 million a year in 2000-01 to 85.4 million in 2008-09 Financial incentives to encourage private landowners to conserve sites account for some 58 per cent of public expenditure There is scope to improve the processes for identifying new sites and declassifying existing ones which are no longer of special interest Planning for homes Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2009-07-02 Housing developments require the approval of planning applications by local planning authorities Authorities before they can proceed The Department for Communities and Local Government has implemented a number of measures in recent years to improve the performance of the development management stage of the planning process in which applications are considered by Authorities and to boost planning capacity The measures include the setting of national targets for the speed of Authority decision making and the allocation of 68 million a year in Planning Delivery Grant the Grant to Authorities as a reward for meeting targets The Grant together with the setting of a 13 week target for decisions has provided Authorities with an incentive to determine applications more quickly Between 2002-03 and 2007-08 the percentage of major residential planning applications decided within 13 weeks almost doubled to 67 per cent The Department's measures to improve the application process have met with mixed success The Department has encouraged Authorities to hold pre application discussions with developers but there is a lack of clarity across Authorities about the purpose of these discussions Some Authorities have not deployed sufficiently senior and experienced staff in the discussions and Authorities have also taken different approaches to charging Authorities monitoring of developers discharge of the conditions attached to planning permissions has been given a low priority partly because of the focus on meeting the 13 week decision target Authorities have spent about 95 per cent of Planning Delivery Grant on their planning functions although the extent to which it has resulted in extra expenditure on planning is unclear

Formation and Third Party Beneficiaries Mindy Chen-Wishart, Alexander Loke, Stefan Vogenauer, Burton Ong, 2018 The Studies in the Contract Laws of Asia series charts the divergence in and common principles of contract laws across Asia with a view to providing the scholarly foundations for future harmonization and reform This second volume examines the formal requirements for contract formation and the rights of third parties NHS pay modernisation in England Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts, 2009-06-18 Agenda for Change the pay modernisation programme for 1.1 million NHS staff in England representing a pay bill of 28 billion in 2007-08 was implemented between December 2004 and December 2006 It covered all NHS staff except doctors dentists and senior managers Agenda for Change introduced a job evaluation scheme and harmonised employment terms and conditions for the multitude of jobs within the NHS A key part of the programme is a process for encouraging staff development and improving staff performance known as the Knowledge and Skills Framework Agenda for Change was expected to bring about new ways of working which would contribute to improved patient care and to more efficient delivery of services Total savings of 1.3 billion over the first five years were predicted These were to come from improvements in productivity of 1.1 to 1.5 per cent a year reductions in equal pay claims reduced use of agency staff and more controllable pay costs The Department and NHS Trusts did not establish ways of measuring the effects of Agenda for Change and there is no active benefits realisation plan The NHS pay bill for the staff covered by Agenda for Change has risen by 5.2 per cent a year on average since 2004/05 while productivity fell by 2.5 per cent a year on average between 2001 and 2005 By autumn 2008 nearly two years after Trusts had completed transferring staff to Agenda for Change terms and conditions and pay rates only 54 per cent of staff had had a knowledge and skills review
