Les langues ouraliennes aujourd'hui M. M. Jocelyne Fernandez, 2005 Conjunctive Markers of Contrast in English and

French Maïté Dupont, 2021-06-15 Situated at the interface between corpus linguistics and Systemic Functional Linguistics this volume focuses on conjunctive markers expressing contrast in English and French The frequency and placement patterns of the markers are analysed using large corpora of texts from two written registers newspaper editorials and research articles The corpus study revisits the long standing but largely unsubstantiated claim that French requires more explicit markers of cohesive conjunction than English and shows that the opposite is in fact the case Novel insights into the placement preferences of English and French conjunctive markers are provided by a new approach to theme and rheme that attaches more importance to the rheme than previous studies The study demonstrates the significant benefits of a combined corpus and Systemic Functional Linguistics approach to the cross linguistic analysis of cohesion Studies in Language, 2006

Patterns in Contrast Jarle Ebeling, Signe Oksefjell Ebeling, 2013-09-17 Combining the fields of phraseology and contrastive analysis this book describes how patterns defined as recurrent word combinations with semantic unity behave cross linguistically As the contrastive approach adopted in the book relies on translations and a bidirectional corpus model the first part offers an in depth discussion of contrastive linguistics with special emphasis on using translations as tertium comparationis and a parallel corpus as the main source of material Central to the contrastive analysis is the use of corpus linguistic methods in the identification of patterns while a deeper understanding of the phraseological nature of the patterns is closely related to the concept of extended units of meaning The second part of the book presents five case studies using an easy to follow step by step method to illustrate the phraseological contrastive approach at work The studies show that patterns weave an intricate web of meanings across languages and demonstrate the potential of exploring patterns in contrast

Language, Social Structure, and Culture, 2003 Comparing Japanese and American interaction Language Social Structure and Culture argues that language use is instrumental in the construction of social structure and culture In order to ground the work in empirical evidence verbal interaction in similar situations Japanese and American cooking classes is compared Unlike other studies of verbal interaction a genre analysis approach is used to examine regular patterns at three levels of language use interaction discourse and grammar Collectively these patterns exhibit both similarities and differences across the classes in the two cultures creating the unique event that has been institutionalized as a cooking class in each culture In concluding the author suggests that genre analysis is a useful approach for cross cultural research in that it provides information about situation specific language use but also information about what aspects of linguistic structure are likely to become conventionalized across languages and cultures across situations and across time

Beyond Misunderstanding Kristin Bührig, Jan D. ten Thije, 2006-01-01 This book challenges two tacit presumptions in the field of intercultural communication research Firstly misunderstandings can frequently be found in intercultural communication although one could not claim that intercultural communication is constituted by misunderstandings alone This volume shows how new perspectives on linguistic analyses of intercultural communication go beyond the analysis of misunderstanding Secondly intercultural communication is not solely constituted by the fact that individuals from different cultural groups interact Each contribution of this volume analyses to what extent instances of discourse are institutionally and or interculturally determined These linguistic reflections involve different theoretical frameworks e.g. functional grammar, systemic functional linguistics, functional pragmatics, rhetorical conversation analysis, ethno methodological conversation analysis, linguistic anthropology and a critical discourse approach. As the contributions focus on the discourse of genetic counseling, gate keeping discourse, international team co operation, international business communication, workplace discourse, internet communication and lamentation discourse, the book exemplifies that the analysis of intercultural communication is organized in response to social needs and therefore may contribute to the social justification of linguistics.
