The infection control market is commonly propelled by the high prevalence of nosocomial infections and the increasing number of surgeries that demand control measures to stop spreading. Based on the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), nearly one in every 20 patients admitted for treatment will develop a nosocomial infection. Hospital-acquired infections result in more than 90,000 deaths per year. In addition, the non-government and government organizations' initiatives concerning infection control, coupled with the rising control measures by healthcare providers in hospitals, are predicted to propel market growth.

Moreover, the manufacturing of sanitizer products observed growth of 60% throughout the pandemic around the U.S. alone. This presents the growth potential for infection control products during the near future. An augment in outsourcing sterilization services and the introduction of improved sterilizing solutions are further underwritings towards the growth of the market for infection control. The growing number of government initiatives to confirm a high degree of infection prevention is presumed to be a proficient growth driver.

According to the SPER market research, 'Infection Control Market by Product [Sterilization (Steam, Hydrogen Peroxide, EtO), Disinfection (Wipes, Liquids, Disinfectors), Services, E-beam, Face Masks], End User (Hospitals, Pharmaceutical Companies) - Global Forecast to 2027' state that the global infection control market is predicted to rise at a CAGR of 3.3% from
