Undomesticated Ground Stacy Alaimo, 2000 From Mother Earth to Mother Nature women have for centuries been associated with nature Feminists troubled by the way in which such representations show women controlled by powerful natural forces and confined to domestic space have sought to distance themselves from nature In Undomesticated Ground Stacy Alaimo issues a bold call to reclaim nature as feminist space Her analysis of a remarkable range of feminist writings as well as of popular journalism visual arts television and film powerfully demonstrates that nature has been and continues to be an essential concept for feminist theory and practice Alaimo urges feminist theorists to rethink the concept of nature by probing the vastly different meanings that it carries She discusses its significance for Americans engaged in social and political struggles from for example the Indian Wars of the early nineteenth century to the birth control movement in the 1920s to contemporary battles against racism and heterosexism Reading works by Catherine Sedgwick Mary Austin Emma Goldman Nella Larsen Donna Haraway Toni Morrison and others Alaimo finds that some of these writers strategically invoke nature for feminist purposes while others cast nature as a postmodern agent of resistance in the service of both environmentalism and the women's movement By examining the importance of nature within literary and political texts this book greatly expands the parameters of the nature writing genre and establishes nature as a crucial site for the cultural work of feminism

Country of the Pointed Firs Sarah Orne Jewett, 2012-12-28 Sarah Orne Jewett who wrote the book when she was 47 was largely responsible for popularizing the regionalism genre with her sketches of the fictional Maine fishing village of Dunnet Landing Like Jewett the narrator is a woman a writer unattached genteel in demeanor intermittently feisty and zealously protective of her time to write The narrator removes herself from her landlady's company and writes in an empty schoolhouse but she also continues to spend a great deal of time with Mrs Todd befriending her hostess and her hostess's family and friends
