Making the News Amber E. Boydston, 2022-12-22 Media attention can play a profound role in whether or not officials act on a policy issue but how policy issues make the news in the first place has remained a puzzle Why do some issues go viral and then just as quickly fall off the radar How is it that the media can sustain public interest for months in a complex story like negotiations over Obamacare while ignoring other important issues in favor of stories on balloon boy With Making the News Amber Boydston offers an eye

opening look at the explosive patterns of media attention that determine which issues are brought before the public At the heart of her argument is the observation that the media have two modes an alarm mode for breaking stories and a patrol mode for covering them in greater depth While institutional incentives often initiate alarm mode around a story they also propel news outlets into the watchdog like patrol mode around its policy implications until the next big news item breaks What results from this pattern of fixation followed by rapid change is skewed coverage of policy issues with a few receiving the majority of media attention while others receive none at all Boydston documents this systemic explosiveness and skew through analysis of media coverage across policy issues including in depth looks at the waxing and waning of coverage around two issues capital punishment and the war on terror Making the News shows how the seemingly unpredictable day to day decisions of the newsroom produce distinct patterns of operation with implications good and bad for national politics

Soft News Goes to War Matthew A. Baum, 2011-10-16 The American public has consistently declared itself less concerned with foreign affairs in the post Cold War era even after 9 11 than at any time since World War II How can it be then that public attentiveness to U S foreign policy crises has increased This book represents the first systematic attempt to explain this apparent paradox Matthew Baum argues that the answer lies in changes to television's presentation of political information In so doing he develops a compelling byproduct theory of information consumption The information revolution has fundamentally changed the way the mass media especially television covers foreign policy Traditional news has been repackaged into numerous entertainment oriented news programs and talk shows By transforming political issues involving scandal or violence especially attacks against America into entertainment the soft news media have actually captured more viewers who will now follow news about foreign crises due to its entertainment value even if they remain uninterested in foreign policy Baum rigorously tests his theory through content analyses of traditional and soft news media coverage of various post WWII U S foreign crises and statistical analyses of public opinion surveys The results hold key implications for the future of American politics and foreign policy For instance watching soft news reinforces isolationism among many inattentive Americans Scholars political analysts and even politicians have tended to ignore the soft news media and politically disengaged citizens But as this well written book cogently demonstrates soft news viewers represent a largely untapped reservoir of unusually persuadable voters
