Eglinton, 2012-10-05 This invaluable addition to Springer's Explorations of Educational Purpose series is a revelatory ethnographic account of the visual material culture of contemporary youths in North America The author's detailed study follows apparently dissimilar groups black and Latino in a New York City after school club and white and Indigenous in a small Canadian community as they inflect their nascent identities with a sophisticated sense of visual material culture in today's globalized world It provides detailed proof of how much ethnography can add to what we know about young people's development in addition to its potential as a model to explore new and significant avenues in pedagogy Supported by a wealth of ethnographic evidence the analysis tracks its subjects' responses to strikingly diverse material ranging from autobiographical accounts by rap artists to the built environment It shows how young people from the world's cultural epicenter just like their counterparts in the sub Arctic construct racial geographic and gender identities in ways that are subtly responsive to what they see around them blending localized characteristics with more widely shared visual references that are now universally accessible through the Web The work makes a persuasive case that youthful engagement with visual material culture is a relational and productive activity that is simultaneously local and global at once constrained and enhanced by geography and possesses a potent and life affirming authenticity Densely interwoven with young people's perspectives the author's account sets out an innovative and interdisciplinary conceptual framework affording fresh insights into how today's youth assimilate what they perceive to be significant Supported by a wealth of ethnographic evidence the analysis tracks its subjects' responses to strikingly diverse material ranging from autobiographical accounts by rap artists to the built environment It shows how young people from the world's cultural epicenter just like their counterparts in the sub Arctic construct racial geographic and gender identities in ways that are subtly responsive to what they see around them blending localized characteristics with more widely shared visual references that are now universally accessible through the Web The work makes a persuasive case that youthful engagement with visual material culture is a relational and productive activity that is simultaneously local and global at once constrained and enhanced by geography and possesses a potent and life affirming authenticity Densely interwoven with young people's perspectives the author's account sets out an innovative and interdisciplinary conceptual framework affording fresh insights into how today's youth assimilate what they perceive to be significant. Supported by a wealth of ethnographic evidence, the analysis tracks its subjects' responses to strikingly diverse material ranging from autobiographical accounts by rap artists to the built environment. It shows how young people from the world's cultural epicenter just like their counterparts in the sub-Arctic construct racial, geographic, and gender identities in ways that are subtly responsive to what they see around them, blending localized characteristics with more widely shared visual references that are now universally accessible through the Web. The work makes a persuasive case that youthful engagement with visual material culture is a relational and productive activity that is simultaneously local and global at once, constrained and enhanced by geography and possesses a potent and life-affirming authenticity. Densely interwoven with young people's perspectives, the author's account sets out an innovative and interdisciplinary conceptual framework affording fresh insights into how today's youth assimilate what they perceive to be significant.

Precarious International Multicultural Education: Hegemony, Dissent and Rising Alternatives Handel Kashope Wright, Michael Singh, Richard Race, 2012-09-22. Multiculturalism and multicultural education are at a paradoxical moment. There is work that continues as if the multicultural hegemony was still intact and on the other hand work articulated as if multiculturalism was decidedly passé. The essays in this collection will be of considerable interest to academics, policy makers, and students of both multiculturalism and multicultural education principally because they touch on both perspectives but concentrate for the most part on the thorny problematic of the workings of multicultural education in its present precarious moment. Given the renewed urgent attacks in various western countries, the cottage industry of death of multiculturalism, texts, and the rise of the interculturalism, transnationalism, diaspora, alternatives is multiculturalism dying. Are the ends of multiculturalism the management or celebration of diversity, representation and recognition for all in society, creation of just and equitable communities at the global, national, and local, school, classroom levels better theorized and realized through the ascendant alternatives. Representing the precarious moment in Canada, Ireland, Australia, the United States and the United Kingdom the essays in this collection address these questions and both depict and trouble hegemonic multicultural education and contrast it with its supposed successor regimes Routledge International Encyclopedia of Women Cheris Kramarae, Dale Spender, 2004-04-16 For a full list of entries and contributors sample entries and more visit the Routledge International Encyclopedia of Women website Featuring comprehensive global coverage of women's issues and concerns from violence and sexuality to feminist theory the Routledge International Encyclopedia of Women brings the field into the new millennium In over 900 signed A-Z entries from US and Europe Asia the Americas Oceania and the Middle East the women who pioneered the field from its inception collaborate with the new scholars who are shaping the future of women's studies to create the new standard work for anyone who needs information on women related subjects

International encyclopedia of adolescence Jeffrey Jensen Arnett, 2007 Publisher description Ageism in Youth Studies Gayle Kimball, 2017-05-11 Ageism is prevalent in a great deal of current scholarship in the social sciences as scholars fault youth for being delinquent or politically apathetic Researchers ignore young people's actual voices despite their leadership in recent global uprisings some of which unseated entrenched dictators Neoliberalism must be exposed in its focus on youth sub cultures and styles rather than economic barriers caused by growing inequality and rising youth unemployment rates Ageism in Youth Studies also discusses the debate about Generation We or Me and if Millennials are narcissistic Resources about global youth studies are included along with the results of the author's surveys and interviews with over 4 000 young people from 88 countries

Asian Popular Culture in Transition Lorna Fitzsimmons, John A.
