Images féminines dans les contes africains (aire culturelle mandingue) Veronika Görög-Karady, Gérard Meyer, 1988-01-01 T00:00:00+01:00 Cet ouvrage est une réédition numérique d'un livre paru au XXe siècle désormais indisponible dans son format d'origine Contes africains Nasser Mouzaoui, 1992 , Folktales of Mayotte, an African Island Lee Haring, 2023-07-13 The book uncovers the versatility and literary skills of oral narrators in a small African island Relying on the researches of three French ethnographers who interviewed storytellers in the 1970s 80s Lee Haring shows a once colonised people using verbal art to preserve ancient values in the postcolonial world when the island of Mayotte was transforming itself from a neglected colony to an overseas department of France The author's innovation is to read ethnographic researches as play scripts to see printed folktales as accounts of live performances One storyteller after another comments symbolically on what it is like to be a formerly colonised population Storytelling women in particular combine diverse plots and characters to create traditional sounding stories which could not have been predicted from the African Malagasy Indian and European traditions coexisting in Mayotte Haring's account shows them to be particularly skilled at irony and ambiguity conveying both submissive and rebellious attitudes in their tales He makes Mayotte storytelling accessible to a new English speaking audience and demonstrates that traditional storytellers in those years were preserving but also critiquing their inherited social order in a changing world Their creative intentions cultural influences and widely different narrative styles constitute Mayotte's system of the arts of the word Literary specialists folklore enthusiasts and people who like reading stories will find much to appreciate in this engaging and sophisticated book

Lifelong Education Paul Bélanger, Ettore Gelpi, 1995-05-31 The basic aim of this special issue is to focus on the profound change of tendency in education that is taking place at both the national and international level At a time when education and lifelong learning are increasingly merging into one process it is important to examine the ways in which educational policies and practices are evolving Consequently we invited a variety of contributors both men and women coming from different regions and encompassing both research and practice to identify significant phenomena and trends that are indicative of the ways in which systems of education are responding to new social and cultural demands We asked our contributors to show how educational reality in different countries is no longer confined within the temporal and spatial limits of institutional education to indicate how models of educational practice are changing to examine the extent to which the traditional cycles of human life are shifting their boundaries and to describe how these changes are manifesting themselves in different national contexts in both South and North We also asked our authors to pose questions raised by this educational revolution We have included 17 contributions some of the authors analysing particular national situations others drawing questions and observations from their own experiences or taking a searching look at education from the perspective of a practical involvement in social issues or from a background of research into popular arts and traditions African Folklore Philip M. vocation formulated and ordered knowledge about the continent Central to this group was Junod who became a pioneering collector in the fields of entomology and botany He would later examine African society with the methodology theories and confidence of the natural sciences On the way he came to depend on the skills of African observers and collectors Out of this work emerged in three stages between 1898 and 1927 an influential classic in the field of South African anthropology Life of a South African Tribe At the same time Patrick Harries examines how local people absorbed imported ideas into their own body of knowledge Through a process of interchange and compromise Africans adapted foreign ways of seeing and doing things and rapidly made them their own This is a history of new ideas and practices that shook African societies before and during the early years of colonialism It is equally a history of ordinary people and their ability to adapt change and subvert these ideas Professor T O Ranger says Now really for the first time Harries sets these arguments in a wonderfully persuasive detailed and dynamic context He really understands the principle of nineteenth century botany and insect classification the organising concepts of linguistics and the changing assumptions of ethnography and anthropology One gets a profound sense of intellectual formation of debate and development of ideas Missionary ideas are themselves no single thing but constantly in debate and in flux
