Continental Drifter The First Grand Tourist:

Continental Drifter Tim Moore, 2001 They stuck their coaches on ride on ride off ferries whisked through France and Italy moaning about garlic and rudeness then bored the neighbours to death by having them all round to look at their holiday watercolours Most people associate the Grand Tour with the baggy shirted Byrons of its 19th century heyday but someone had to do it first and Thomas Coryate author of arguably the first piece of pure travel writing Crudities was that man Tim Moore travels through 45 cities in the steps of a larger than life Jacobean hero incidentally responsible for introducing forks to England and thus ending forever the days of the finger lickin good drumstick hurlers of courts gone by Sites of Exchange Maurizio Ascari, Adriana Corrado, 2006 Crossing borders both physically and imaginatively is part of our nomadic postmodern identity but transcultural and transnational exchanges have also played a major role in the centuries long processes of hybridisation that helped to fashion the vast geographic political and imaginative container of diversity we call Europe This volume gathers together the work of scholars from several European countries in an attempt to encourage a collective reflection upon historical and often mythical locations and landscapes as well as upon the thresholds and faultlines that unite or separate them The issues the volume tackles are delicate and complex for the encounter of differences engenders both curiosity and suspicion and there is no easy way to create a new synthesis while respecting and promoting diversity However since Europe is inevitably a cultural and political entity in the making Europeans should embrace the great narrative of a utopian project uniting their efforts to work towards a civilisation that is grounded on plurality and openness
