Continuation Of Sir Philip Sidney's Arcadia:

A Continuation of Sir Philip Sidney's "Arcadia" Anna Weamys, 1994 Anna Weamys's A Continuation of Sir Philip Sidney's Arcadia is a woman's contribution to one of the dominant genres of her sex's readership in the seventeenth century the heroic romance Part of the considerable power and appeal of this work is its reduction of the heroic romance to a smaller scale In its shorter length and its comparatively direct style it avoids the fustian and bloat of the form At the same time it elaborates on the genre's stronger points its playfulness and fantasy its explorations of the nuances of sensibility while not sacrificing its capacity for political statement Weamys's Arcadia is an interesting and accessible story that while it pairs well with Sidney can stand on its own or be paired with other writers of romance like Shakespeare or Spenser The first appearance of the text since the seventeenth century this volume includes both a modernized and an old spelling edition of the text

Romancing the Self in Early Modern Englishwomen's Life Writing Julie A. Eckerle, 2016-04-01 Juxtaposing life writing and romance this study offers the first book length exploration of the dynamic and complex relationship between the two genres In so doing it operates at the intersection of several recent trends interest in women's contributions to autobiography greater awareness of the diversity and flexibility of auto biographical forms in the early modern period and the use of manuscripts and other material evidence to trace literacy practices Through analysis of a wide variety of life writings by early modern Englishwomen including Elizabeth Delaval Dorothy Calthorpe Ann Fanshawe and Anne Halkett Julie A Eckerle demonstrates that these women were not only familiar with the controversial romance genre but also deeply influenced by it Romance she argues with its unending tales of unsatisfying love spoke to something in women's experience offered a model by which they could recount their own disappointments in a world where arranged marriage and often loveless matches ruled the day and exerted a powerful pervasive pressure on their textual self formations Romancing the Self in Early Modern Englishwomen's Life Writing documents a vibrant secular form of auto biographical writing that coexisted alongside numerous spiritual forms providing a much more nuanced and complete understanding of sixteenth and seventeenth century women's reading and writing literacies Fan Fiction and Fan Communities in the Age of the Internet Karen Hellekson, Kristina Busse, 2014-09-17 Fans have been responding to literary works since the days of Homer's Odyssey and Euripedes Medea More recently a number of science fiction fantasy media and game works have found devoted fan followings The advent of the Internet has brought these groups from relatively limited face to face enterprises to easily accessible global communities within which fan texts proliferate and are widely read and even more widely commented upon

New interactions between readers and writers of fan texts are possible in these new virtual communities From Star Trek to Harry Potter the essays in this volume explore the world of fan fiction its purposes how it is created how the fan experiences it Grouped by subject matter essays cover topics such as genre intersection sexual relationships between characters character construction through narrative and the role of the beta reader in online communities The work also discusses the terminology used by creators of fan artifacts and comments on the effects of technological advancements on fan communities

Dowd, Julie A. Eckerle, 2016-04-15 By taking account of the ways in which early modern women made use of formal and generic structures to constitute themselves in writing the essays collected here interrogate the discursive contours of gendered identity in sixteenth and seventeenth century England

The contributors explore how generic choice mixture and revision influence narrative constructions of the female self in early modern England Collectively they situate women's life writings within the broader textual culture of early modern England while maintaining a focus on the particular rhetorical devices and narrative structures that comprise individual texts Reconsidering women's life writing in light of recent critical trends most notably historical formalism this volume produces both new readings of early modern texts such as Margaret Cavendish's autobiography and the diary of Anne Clifford and a new understanding of the complex relationships between literary forms and early modern women's selves This volume engages with new critical methods to make innovative connections between canonical and non canonical writing in so doing it helps to shape the future of scholarship on early modern women

Narrative Structure and Reader Formation in Lady Mary Wroth's Urania Rahel Orgis, 2016-12-01 Narrative Structure and Reader Formation in Lady Mary Wroth's Urania offers the first systematic formal and thematic analysis of Wroth's Urania in its historical context and explores the structural means by which Wroth fashions her readership The book thus has a dual focus at once on narrative art and reader formation It makes two original claims the first being that the Urania is not the unorganized accumulation of stories critics have tended to present it as but a work of sophisticated narrative structures i.e. a complex text in a positive sense These structures are revealed by means of a circumspect narratological analysis of the formal and thematic patterns that organise the Urania Such an analysis furthers our understanding of the reading strategies that Wroth encourages The second claim is then that through the careful structuring of her text Wroth seeks to create her own ideal readership More precisely the formal and thematic structures of the Urania engage with readers' expectations inviting them to reflect on prominent thematic issues and respond to the text as what early modern prefaces term good readers Combining narratological methods with a generic perspective and taking into account the work of book historians on early modern reading practices this monograph provides a new approach to the Urania supplementing the typically gender or auto biographically oriented interpretations of the romance Moreover it contributes to the study of early modern prose narrative and romance and exemplifies how historically contextualised narratological analysis may yield new insights and profit research on reading strategies
