Continuing Higher Education The Coming Wave:

Continuing Higher Education Allan W. Lerner, B. Kay King, 1992 How will American institutions of higher learning face the challenges of our evolving society one in which they are under increasing pressure to help solve social problems Higher and thicker walls will not insulate universities from the social policy issues of health reindustrialisation crime race relations and political participation nor from corporate demands for new skills to restore competitiveness with Japan and Western Europe nor from the dwindling of the traditional student pool In Continuing Higher Education Allan W Lerner B Kay King and five other authors address a thorny problem for today's mega universities large research teaching complexes that serve an array of purposes Their dilemma is whether or not to stand fast in their current configurations becoming more and more irrelevant as smaller more resilient organisations fill the void and as funding dries up at all levels for all purposes and from all sources or to commit to a new integration of service teaching and research Continuing Higher Education begins with an examination of how the university must adapt to a fundamentally altered student body explains how changes will affect faculty and research agendas proposes and criticises new structures for delivering continuing education considers financial strategies that accommodate entrepreneurship without bowing to it and prescribes a regimen of adaptation to an environment that is essentially a complicated web of organisations University administrators continuing education program planners professors researchers and graduate students should find this work thought provoking Profile of Undergraduates in U.S. Postsecondary Education Institutions, 1999 Resources in Education, 1998 Heart of Creation Andrea Joyce Stone, 2002 This accessible state of the art review of Mayan hieroglyphics and cosmology also serves as a tribute to one of the field's most noted pioneers The core of this book focuses on the current study of Mayan hieroglyphics as inspired by the recently deceased Mayanist Linda Schele As author or coauthor of more than 200 books or articles on the Maya Schele served as the chief disseminator of knowledge to the general public about this ancient Mesoamerican culture similar to the way in which Margaret Mead introduced anthropology and the people of Borneo to the English speaking world Twenty five contributors offer scholarly writings on subjects ranging from the ritual function of public space at the Olmec site and the gardens of the Great Goddess at Teotihuacan to the understanding of Jupiter in Maya astronomy and the meaning of the water throne of Quirigua Zoomorph P The workshops on Maya history and writing that Schele conducted in Guatemala and Mexico for the highland people modern descendants of the Mayan civilization are thoroughly addressed as is the phenomenon termed Maya mania the explosive growth of interest in Maya epigraphy iconography astronomy and cosmology that Schele stimulated An appendix provides a bibliography of Schele's publications and a collection of Schele's written memories of the Rabbit Woman by some of her colleagues and students Of interest to professionals as well as generalists this collection will stand as a marker of the state of Mayan studies at the turn of the 21st century and as a tribute to the remarkable personality who guided a large part of that archaeological research for more than
