

your guide to contraception

This booklet shows the available contraceptive methods, explains how they work, how effective they are and the main advantages and disadvantages. The effectiveness figures quoted are based on independent research.

Figures are given for perfect use and typical use.

- Perfect use means using the method correctly and consistently every time.
- Typical use is when you don't always use the method correctly and consistently.

Contraception needs to be used until the menopause. This is two years after last having a period if you're aged under 50, or one year if aged over 50. This advice may be different if you're using hormonal contraception.

How do I choose a method?

There are many methods of contraception to choose from and it's worth taking the time to find out more about each one so that you can choose contraception that suits you. There are two methods of contraception specifically for men – the male / external condom and sterilisation (vasectomy) – and 13 for women. You can find more detailed information about each method at FPA's Sexwise website, www.sexwise.org.uk.

Some of the things you might want to think about are:

- whether you (or a partner) want to become pregnant fairly soon, many years away or not at all
- how you (and/or a partner) want contraception to suit your lifestyle
- whether you (or a partner) want to use a contraceptive method every day, every time you have sex or less often.

Your answers should influence your decision about what contraception to use.

Is contraception free and where can I go to get it?

You can get free contraception, including emergency contraception, from:

- a general practice, unless they say they don't provide contraception services
- a contraception clinic or a sexual health clinic
- a young people's service (these will have an upper age limit).

You can also get emergency contraceptive pills free from:

- some genitourinary medicine (GUM) clinics
- most NHS walk-in centres (England only)
- some pharmacies (there may be an age limit)
- some hospital accident and emergency departments (phone first to check).

If you're 16 or over you can buy emergency contraceptive pills from most pharmacies. They may also sell condoms, diaphragms, caps and spermicide.

How can I find a contraceptive service?

For more information on sexual health visit www.fpa.org.uk or www.sexwise.org.uk.

Information for young people can be found at www.brook.org.uk.

To find your closest clinic you can:

- use Find a Clinic at www.fpa.org.uk/clinics
