Archaeology of the Lower Ohio River Valley Jon Muller, 2016-12-05 Although it has been occupied for as long and possesses a mound building tradition of considerable scale and interest Muller contends that the archaeology of the lower Ohio River Valley from the confluence with the Mississippi to the falls at Louisville Kentucky remains less well known than that of the elaborate mound building cultures of the upper valley This study provides a synthesis of archaeological work done in the region emphasizing population growth and adaptation within an ecological framework in an attempt to explain the area's cultural evolution An Archaeological Reconnaissance of the Illinois Portions of the Smithland Pool of the Ohio River Brian M. Butler, Glen P. Harrell, Mary C. Hamilton, 1979

Caborn-Welborn David Pollack, 2004-08-19 An important case study of chiefdom collapse and societal reemergence Caborn Welborn a late Mississippian A D 1400 1700 farming society centered at the confluence of the Ohio and Wabash Rivers in what is now southwestern Indiana southeastern Illinois and northwestern Kentucky developed following the collapse of the Angel chiefdom A D 1000 1400 Using ceramic and settlement data David Pollack examines the ways in which that new society reconstructed social political and economic relationships from the remnants of the Angel chiefdom Unlike most instances of the demise of a complex society led by elites the Caborn Welborn population did not become more inward looking as indicated by an increase in extraregional interaction nor did they disperse to smaller more widely scattered settlements as evidenced by a continuation of a hierarchy that included large villages This book makes available for the first time detailed well illustrated descriptions of Caborn Welborn ceramics identifies ceramic types and attributes that reflect Caborn Welborn interaction with Oneota tribal groups and central Mississippi valley Mississippian groups and offers an internal regional chronology Based on intraregional differences in ceramic decoration the types of vessels interred with the dead and cemetery location Pollack suggests that in addition to the former Angel population Caborn Welborn society may have included households that relocated to the Ohio Wabash confluence from nearby collapsing polities and that Caborn Welborn's sociopolitical organization could be better considered as a riverine confederacy Archaic Societies Thomas E. Emerson, Dale L. McElrath, Andrew C. Fortier, 2012-02-01
