relationship managers often find it difficult to evaluate and optimize supplier relationships which are crucial to the success of their business yet complex and multifaceted characterized by long term orientation uncertainty temporal evolution idiosyncratic investment improvement potential and adaptation flexibility How to design optimal supply contracts to govern supplier relationships has been a common problem in business practice for many years This book draws on the modern theories of investment under uncertainty in the finance literature and proposes a hierarchical dynamic and value based solution for supplier relationship and supply contract management At the strategic level the author addresses supplier relationship management by putting forward a three layer relationship valuation procedure and a fuzzy stochastic relationship valuation model In addition decision models for managing a supplier relationship life cycle as well as configuring and planning supplier relationship portfolios are presented At the tactical level the author deals with supply contract management A general compound supply contract model is proposed and how to design optimal supply contracts under demand risk and price risk is explored Furthermore the contract portfolio configuration problem is discussed Catalog of
