Appropriate Technology Tools Choices And Implications:

Appropriate Technology Barrett Hazeltine, Christopher Bull, 1999 The introduction of technology into developing communities around the world is closely tied to the everyday jobs of international aid workers engineers health professionals social workers and members of religious organizations A majority of people involved with international development have a non technical background This text is written for both non technical and technical students and professionals who are interested in or currently working in international and community development The book covers the engineering design process as well as the commonly used technological systems processes and devices It looks at societal impact political influence and financial implications of introducing new systems and technologies

Fieldwork Is Not What It Used to Be James D. Faubion, George E. Marcus, 2011-10-15 Over the past two decades anthropologists have been challenged to rethink the nature of ethnographic research the meaning of fieldwork and the role of ethnographers Ethnographic fieldwork has cultural social and political ramifications that have been much discussed and acted upon but the training of ethnographers still follows a very traditional pattern this volume engages and takes its point of departure in the experiences of ethnographers in the making that encourage alternative models for professional training in fieldwork and its intellectual contexts The work done by contributors to Fieldwork Is Not What It Used to Be articulates at the strategic point of career making research features of this transformation in progress Setting aside traditional anxieties about ethnographic authority the authors revisit fieldwork with fresh initiative In search of better understandings of the contemporary research process itself they assess the current terms of the engagement of fieldworkers with their subjects address the constructive open ended forms by which the conclusions of fieldwork might take shape and offer an accurate and useful description of what it means to become and to be an anthropologist today

Technology and Human Development Ilse Oosterlaken, 2015-05-15 This book introduces the capability approach in which wellbeing agency and justice are the core values as a powerful normative lens to examine technology and its role in development This approach attaches central moral importance to individual human capabilities understood as effective opportunities people have to lead the kind of lives they have reason to value The book examines the strengths limitations and versatility of the capability approach when applied to technology and shows the need to supplement it with other approaches in order to deal with the challenges that technology raises The first chapter places the capability approach within the context of broader debates about technology and human development discussing amongst others the appropriate technology movement The middle part then draws on philosophy and ethics of technology in order to deepen our understanding of the relation between technical artefacts and human capabilities arguing that we must simultaneously zoom in on the details of technological design and zoom out to see the broader socio technical embedding of a technology The book examines whether technology is merely a neutral instrument that expands what people can do and be in life or whether technology transfers may also impose certain views of what it means to lead a good life The final chapter examines the capability approach in relation to contemporary debates about ICT for Development ICT4D as the technology domain where the approach has been most extensively applied so far This book is an invaluable read for students in Development Studies and STS as well as policy makers practitioners and engineers looking for an accessible overview of technology and development from the perspective of the capability approach The Routledge Companion to Alternative Organization Martin Parker, George Cheney, Valérie Fournier, Chris Land, 2014-01-03 Despite the Great Recession slightly different forms of global capitalism are still portrayed as the only game in town by the vast majority of people in power in the world today Unbridled growth trade liberalisation and competition are advocated as the only or best ways of organizing the contemporary world Unemployment yawning gaps between rich and poor political disengagement and environmental devastation are too often seen as acceptable side effects of the dominance of neo liberalism But the reality is that capitalism has always been contested and that people have created many other ways of providing for themselves This book explores economic and organizational possibilities which extend far beyond the narrow imagination of economists and management theorists Chapters on co operatives community currencies the transition movement scrounging co housing and much more paints a rich picture of the ways in which another world is not only possible but already taking shape The aim of this companion is to move beyond complaining about the present and into exploring this diversity of organisational possibilities Our starting point is a critical analysis of contemporary global capitalism is merely the opening for thinking about organizing as a form of politics by other means and one that can be driven by the values of solidarity freedom and responsibility This comprehensive companion with an international cast of contributors gives voice to forms of organizing which remain unrepresented or marginalised in organizational studies and conventional politics yet which offer more promising grounds for social and environmental justice It is a valuable resource for students activists and researchers interested in alternative approaches to economy and society in a variety of disciplinary and interdisciplinary fields

Design and Society: Social Issues in Technological Design Cameron Shelley, 2017-03-30 This book discusses concepts of good design from social perspectives grounded in anthropology sociology and philosophy the goal being to provide readers with an awareness of social issues to help them in their work as design professionals Each chapter covers a specific area of good practice in design explaining and applying a small set of related concepts to a series of case studies and including a list of additional sources recommended for further study The book does not assume any specialized technical background knowledge it is not a how to book that offers technical instruction Yet it focuses on the assessment of designs addressing concepts qualitatively with a small exception for the concept of risk Based on an established university course on Design and Society at the Centre for Society Technology and Values that the author offers for students from a variety of disciplines the book represents a valuable resource for students in engineering architecture and industrial design helping prepare them for careers as design professionals and for all readers in design related professions interested in understanding a side of design that they may well never have considered systematically Because of its broad scope and non technical presentation style the book may also appeal to general readers interested in social issues in design and technology

Against Reduction Noelani Arista, Sasha Costanza-Chock, Vafa Ghazavi, Suzanne Kite, 2021-10-05 Provocative hopeful essays imagine a future that is not reduced to algorithms What is human flourishing in an age of machine intelligence when many claim that the world's most complex problems can be reduced to narrow technical questions Does more computing make us more intelligent or simply more computationally powerful We need not always resist reduction our ability to simplify helps us interpret complicated situations The trick is to know when and how to do so Against Reduction offers a collection of provocative and illuminating essays that consider different ways of recognizing and addressing the reduction in our approach to artificial intelligence and ultimately to ourselves Inspired by a widely read manifesto by Joi Ito that called for embracing the diversity and irreducibility of the world these essays offer persuasive and compelling variations on resisting reduction Among other things the writers draw on indigenous epistemology to argue for an extended circle of relationships that includes the nonhuman and robotic cast Snow White as a tale of AI featuring a smart mirror point out the cisnormativity of security protocol algorithms map the interconnecting networks of so called noncommunicable disease and consider the limits of moral mathematics Taken together they show that we should push back against some of the reduction around us and do whatever is in our power to work toward broader solutions
