Arab Industrial Integration:

Arab Industrial Integration (RLE Economy of Middle East) Elias T. Ghantus, 2020-09-10 The Arab countries are increasingly recognising their importance as a regional economic grouping Given the highly skewed distribution of natural human and financial resources the course of economic development in the Arab countries seems to be interrelated Through pooling their resources and markets these countries will not only be able to optimise investment decisions but also broaden the potential for development This book argues that economic integration is not merely a question of reducing or eliminating discriminatory measures as emphasised in previous integration attempts It calls rather for a positive action based on a regional investment strategy which coordinates production programmes to reap the benefits of specialisation and scale The book focuses on past industrialisation efforts in the Arab countries and examines the emerging patterns of industrial growth A pioneering attempt is made to identify specific industries whose economic viability can be enhanced by conceiving them on a regional basis The book concludes by framing a strategy for an integrated industrial development in the Arab region First published in 1982 Arab Industrial Integration Elias T. Ghantus, 1982

Nugent, Theodore H.

Thomas,2016-02-05 After the oil discoveries of the early 1930s Bahrain rapidly became an oil exporting country with a relatively high income per capita More recently Bahrain has succeeded in diversifying its oil dominated economy by developing regional banking and other services and a variety of light and heavy industries Various circumstances have combined to make Bahrain a leader among the Arab Gulf States in the transformation of traditional Arabic tribal societies into modern social and economic structures This book first published in 1985 in exploring the past present and possible futures of Bahrain and the Gulf attempts to describe the nature of this transformation It estimates to what extent Bahrain has merely an outward appearance of modernity and explores the conflicts between the compelling power of modern values and the pervasive traditional religions Bahrain is not typical of the Arab countries of the Gulf it may however serve as a gauge of their current position and likely future It will therefore be valuable to those interested in gaining more insight into the history and politics of the Middle East during this period of rapid change      Is MENA a Region? The Scope for Regional Integration Mr.Stanley Fischer,Mr.Mohamed A. El-Erian,1996-04-01 The paper analyzes the scope and implications of greater economic integration in the Middle East and North Africa MENA After reviewing whether MENA satisfies the defining characteristics of a region it documents the low level of regional economic interaction It argues that gains from greater regional interactions will depend primarily on implementing domestic reform and external policies that in any case are needed for the region to benefit from the broader process of globalization of the world economy It also discusses measures aimed directly at facilitating regional interaction      EIU Regional Review ,1986
