written in an alphabetic cuneiform script unknown before 1929 this script represents consonants fully and exactly but gives only limited and equivocal indication of vowels Our knowledge of the Ugaritic language is supplemented by evidence from Akkadian texts found at Ugarit and containing many Ugaritic words especially names written in the syllabic cuneiform script Scholars reconstructing the lost language of Ugarit draw finally on a wide variety of comparative linguistic data from texts not found at Ugarit as well as from living languages Evidence from Phoenician Hebrew Amorite Aramaic Arabic Akkadian Ethiopic and recently also Eblaitic can be applied to good effect For the student as well as for the research scholar it is important that the various sources of Ugaritic be distinguished in modern transliteration or transcription Since many of the texts found at Ugarit are fragmentary or physically damaged it is well for students to be clear about what portion of a text that they are reading actually survives and what portion is a modern attempt to fill in the blanks While the selected texts in section 8 reflect the state of preservation in detail in the other sections of the grammar standardized forms are presented based on all available evidence In 1929 the first cuneiform tablet inscribed with previously unknown signs was found during archeological excavations at Ras Shamra ancient Ugarit in northern Syria Since then a special discipline sometimes called Ugaritology has arisen The impact of this discovery on the study of the Semitic languages has been profound

Jones, 2009-07-14

Efforts at interpreting Joban poetry have often been divided between philological and literary critics This study brings these two critical modes together to offer an account of how Job 28 achieves meaning The heart of the study consists of two major sections The first is a reading of the poem with special attention to the conceptual background of its metaphors Rather than a poetic account of mining technology Job 28 is properly understood against the heroic deeds of ancient Mesopotamian kings described in Sumerian and Akkadian royal narratives especially the Gilgamesh epic The second major section is a thorough philological and textual commentary in which comparative philological and text critical methods are complemented by an aesthetic rationale for restoring the text of the poem as a work of art The study reveals a multileveled and image driven masterpiece whose complexity impacts how one reads Job 28 as poetry and theology The Future of Biblical Archaeology James Karl Hoffmeier, Alan Ralph Millard, 2004

In recent times Biblical archaeology has been heavily criticised by some camp who maintain that it has little to offer Near Eastern archaeology However some scholars carry on the fight to change people's views and this collection of essays continues the trend towards reassessing and reemphasising the link between the Bible and archaeology Interconnected Traditions: Semitic Languages, Literatures, Cultures—A Festschrift for Geoffrey Khan Aaron D.
