a Southern Past 1885-1915 Looking at North Carolina's History Through Architecture Yuppies and Bubbas and the Politics of Culture in Historic Preservation Presbyterians in North Carolina Walter H. Conser, Robert J. Cain, 2011-04-25 This volume is the first comprehensive overview of North Carolina Presbyterians to appear in more than a hundred years. Drawing on congregational and administrative histories, personal memoirs, and recent scholarship while paying close attention to the relevant social, political, and religious contexts of the state and region, Walter Conser and Robert Cain go beyond older approaches to denominational history by focusing on the identity and meaning of the Presbyterian experience in the Old North State from the seventeenth through the twentieth centuries. Conser and Cain explore issues as diverse as institutional development and worship experience, the patterns and influence of race, ethnicity, and gender, and involvement in education and social justice campaigns. In part 1 of the book, Beginnings, they trace the entrance of Presbyterians who were legally considered dissenters throughout the colonial period into the eastern, central, and western sections of the state. The authors show how the Piedmont became the nexus of Presbyterian organizational development and examine the ways in which political movements, including campaigns for American independence, deeply engaged Presbyterians, as did the incandescence of revivalism and agitation for reform, which extended into the antebellum period. The book's second section, Conflict, Renewal, and Reunion, investigates the denominational tensions provoked by the slavery debate and the havoc of the Civil War, the soul-searching that accompanied Confederate defeat, and the rebuilding efforts that came during the New South era. Such important factors as the changing roles of women in the church and the decline of Jim Crow helped pave the way for the eventual reunion of the northern and southern branches of mainline Presbyterianism. By the arrival of the new millennium, Presbyterians in North Carolina were prepared to meet future challenges with renewed confidence. A model for modern denominational history, this book is an astute and sensitive portrayal of a prominent Protestant denomination in a southern context. Walter H. Conser Jr. is professor of religion and professor of history at the University of North Carolina, Wilmington. His books include A Coat of Many Colors: Religion and Society along the Cape Fear River of North Carolina and God and the Natural World: Religion and Science in the Natural World Before His Retirement. After thirty-two years of service, Robert J. Cain was head of the Colonial Records Branch at the North Carolina State Archives. He is the editor of The Colonial Records of North Carolina, second series. Where These Memories Grow W. Fitzhugh Brundage, 2015-12-01 Southerners are known for their strong sense of history. But the kinds of memories southerners have valued and the ways in which they have preserved, transmitted, and revitalized those memories have been as varied as the region's inhabitants themselves. This collection presents fresh and innovative perspectives on how southerners across two centuries and from Texas to North Carolina have interpreted their past. Thirteen contributors explore the workings of historical memory among groups as diverse as white artisans in early nineteenth-century Georgia, African American authors in the late nineteenth century, and Louisiana Cajuns in the twentieth century. In the process, they offer critical insights for understanding the many communities that make up the American South As ongoing controversies over the Confederate flag the Alamo and depictions of slavery at historic sites demonstrate southern history retains the power to stir debate By placing these and other conflicts over the recalled past into historical context this collection will deepen our understanding of the continuing significance of history and memory for southern regional identity Contributors Bruce E Baker Catherine W Bishir David W Blight Holly Beachley Brear W Fitzhugh Brundage Kathleen Clark Michele Gillespie John Howard Gregg D Kimball Laurie F Maffly Kipp C Brenden Martin Anne Sarah Rubin Stephanie E Yuhl Almanac of Architecture & Design 2006 James P. Cramer, Jennifer Evans Yankopolus, 2005-11 North Carolina Women Michele Gillespie, Sally G. McMillen, 2014 This first of two volumes on North Carolina women chronicles the influence and accomplishments of individual women from the pre Revolutionary period through the early 20th century They represent a range of social and economic backgrounds political stances areas of influence and geographical regions within the state Even though North Carolina remained mostly rural until well into the twentieth century and the lives of most women centered on farm family and church Gillespie and McMillen note that the state s people exhibited a progressive streak that positively influenced women Public funds were set aside to advance statewide education private efforts after the Civil War led to the founding of numerous black schools and colleges and in 1891 the General Assembly chartered the State Normal and Industrial School later UNC G as one of the first publicly funded colleges for white women By the late 19th century as several essays in this volume reveal education played a pivotal role in the lives of many white and black women It inspired their activism and involvement in a world beyond their traditional domestic sphere CRM, 2010 Into the Sound Country Bland Simpson, 2017-12-01 Into the Sound Country is a story of rediscovery of two North Carolinians returning to seek their roots in the state s eastern provinces It is an affectionate impressionistic and personal portrait of the coastal plain by two natives of the region writer Bland Simpson and photographer Ann Cary Simpson Here Bland Simpson tours his old waterfront haunts in Elizabeth City explores scuppernong vineyards from Hertford to Southport tramps through Pasquotank swamps and Croatan pine savannas and visits Roanoke River oyster bars and Core Banks fishing shanties Ann Simpson s original photographs capture both the broad vistas of the sounds and rivers and the quieter corners of mossy creeks and country churchyards Her selection of archival illustrations ranges from the informative to the humorous from a turpentine scraper at work in the 1850s to a pair of little girls playing with a horseshoe crab on a Beaufort porch at the turn of the century A memorable journey into eastern Carolina s richly varied natural world Into the Sound Country is for anyone who would spend a while in one of America s most intriguing and underexplored areas A Coat of Many Colors Walter Conser, 2006-09-04 While religious diversity is often considered a recent phenomenon in America the Cape Fear region of southeastern North Carolina has been a diverse community since the area was first settled Early on the region and the port city of Wilmington were more urban than the rest of the state and thus provided people with opportunities seldom found in other parts of North Carolina This area drew residents from many ethnic backgrounds and the men and women who settled there became an integral part of the region's culture. Set against the backdrop of national and southern religious experience A Coat of Many Colors examines issues of religious diversity and regional identity in the Cape Fear area. Author Walter H. Conser Jr. draws on a broad range of sources including congregational records, sermon texts, liturgy, newspaper accounts, family memoirs, and technological developments to explore the evolution of religious life in this area. Beginning with the story of prehistoric Native Americans and continuing through an examination of life at the end of the twentieth century, Conser tracks the development of the various religions, denominations, and ethnic groups that call the Cape Fear region home. From early Native American traditions to the establishment of the first churches, cathedrals, synagogues, mosques, and temples, A Coat of Many Colors offers a comprehensive view of the religious and ethnic diversity that have characterized Cape Fear throughout its history. Through the lens of regional history, Conser explores how this area's rich religious and racial diversity can be seen as a microcosm for the South, and he examines the ways in which religion can affect such diverse aspects of life as architecture and race relations.

A City's Architecture
William Alvis Brogden, 2016-12-05 When considering the successful design of cities, the focus tends to be on famous examples such as Paris or Rome, with equally successful but smaller and more remote examples being ignored. In addition, the more diffuse patterns of settlement of the north and western parts of Europe are hardly considered at all in comparison to the tightly formed urban centres of the Mediterranean. However, the diffuse town region is typical of our time, whatever the location. By analysing the development of a successful small city of ancient foundation, which grew from a diffuse, long-settled and dense landscape, then demonstrated a slow growth as a tight urban form, before an early adoption of the designed landscape, as town lessons can be learned. These lessons may be useful in addressing the nature and growth of any city or city region. The story of Aberdeen is just such an example. Not only are the materials for its long history, present its relations and concerns with the wider world, are also well attested, and many of the ideas which directed or significantly impinged on the design of cities were tested there or had their origin there. As its form accumulated and developed over such a long time, Aberdeen also suggests the idea of an architecture of the city. This book examines the development and design of a city from three inescapable aspects: its location and character of the landscape, its own particular history of development, and its cultural responses to various waves of thought.
