A Fresh Map Of Life The Emergence Of The Third Age:

A Fresh Map of Life Peter Laslett, 1991 Today as never before most people in the developed world at least can expect to live to old age How has society reacted to this shift of mortality Much of the accepted account of ageing is simply the persistence into our own time of past perceptions Laslett argues that the Third Age beyond the breadwinning and child rearing years is that of greatest personal fulfilment the apogee of life Combining social history sociology and philosophy this book provokes new thinking on one of the crucial changes in the modern world A Fresh Map of Life Peter Laslett, 1989

Carr, Kathrin S. Komp, 2011-02-22 The third age is described as the period in the life course that occurs after retirement but prior to the onset of disability revealing a period in which individuals have the capacity to remain actively engaged This book serves as a comprehensive discussion about how the emergence of the third age has changed the way we think about and examine traditional frameworks regarding aging issues and the life course It introduces the discussion of the unique challenges and opportunities that older adults face while moving through this early phase of later life proposing new frameworks concepts and methods to re examine later life in the context of the era of the third age This book proposes new ways of thinking about how we conceptualize the life course think about the role of the welfare state in the lives of older people negotiate social roles in later life make meaning of our lives as we age and cultivate relationships with others during later life It brings together theoretical concepts and frameworks methodological advances and emerging themes and controversies that are redefining gerontology in the era of the Third Age Highlighting important issues that warrant further exploration and discussion this book advances our understanding of the Third Age and focuses attention on critical issues that should be addressed in future Third Age research and scholarly development Key Features Includes up to date description and analysis of the third age as a concept life phase and social status Addresses multiple perspectives to illustrate the impact of the third age on the way we examine later life Uses disciplinary perspectives such as social policy demography gerontology sociology social work anthropology and social psychology Examines mechanisms that stratify the older population in the context of the third age

Ageing and Popular Culture Andrew Blaikie, 1999-03-04 As the grey market perpetuates the quest for eternal youth the biological realities of deep old age are increasingly denied Ageing and Popular Culture traces the historical emergence of stereotypes of retirement and documents their recent demise arguing that although modernisation marginalisation and medicalisation created rigid age classifications the rise of consumer culture has coincided with a postmodern broadening of options for those in the Third Age With an adroit use of photographs and other visual sources Andrew Blaikie demonstrates that an expanded leisure phase is breaking down barriers between mid and later life At the same time positive ageing also creates new imperatives and new norms with attendant forms of deviance While babyboomers may anticipate a fulfilling retirement none relish decline Has deep old age replaced death as the taboo subject of the late twentieth century If so what might be the consequences

Ageism in the Media Wenqian Xu, 2021-04-22 Ageism is a social problem that has harmful effects on the wellbeing of older people and needs to be tackled It is pervasive and evident in the media e g films television print and social media Despite the fact that non individual actors have adopted social media on a large scale in contemporary society the social media representation of older people generated by those actors has remained insufficiently studied This thesis aims to increase our knowledge of social media representations of older people and improve our understanding of ageism in the media The knowledge obtained from this research can be used to inform policy and practice in terms of mitigating ageism in the media This thesis consists of four articles which examine social media representations of older people generated by local authorities and media companies with a particular focus on exploring how older people are represented in social media and how social media content about older people is produced Articles 1 3 and 4 present empirical analyses of social media texts about older people generated by Swedish local authorities and Chinese media companies serving to identify the representations that may lead to ageism Article 2 offers an empirical analysis of the production process for social media photos of older people within local authorities serving to explore the ways in which stereotypical third age representations are generated This thesis employs the methods of content analysis and thematic analysis to examine representations of older people on various social media platforms i e local authority managed Facebook pages Tencent Video as a video streaming platform and Sina Weibo as a microblogging platform It also employs the method of thematic analysis to analyse interview transcripts concerning the production of social media photos of older people within local authorities The results of the thesis reveal the complexity and nuances in the representation process and the meanings generated by those representations of older people on social media More specifically the thesis illuminates three ways in which the social media representations of older people lead to ageism 1 the stereotyping of older people through signifying practice 2 the generation and negotiation of the meanings surrounding older people among social actors with different power relations and 3 the use of formal and informal rules within social media in the representation activities of mediatised institutions A synthesis of the findings from the four empirical articles indicates a process of establishing the stereotypical third age representation as a convention for social media which can be seen as institutional ageism The synthesis also indicates that this stereotypical third age representation appears to be prominent in different contexts and across the various types of social media under examination In this regard it is necessary to promote knowledge and raise awareness about the risks associated with such representations of older people in the media This thesis deepens our understanding of ageism in the media and generates evidence based policy recommendations for media producers to inspire more thoughtful and reflexive media representations of older people and later life Iderism r ett socialt problem som har negativa effekter p ldre m nniskors v lbefinnande och som d rf r beh ver uppm rksammas och motverkas Iderism terfinns och skapas i alla typer av media t ex filmer tv tryck och sociala media genom det s tt p vilket ldre personer framst lls i dessa sammanhang Trots att en rad olika typer av organisationer idag anv nder sig av sociala medier s har forskningen r rande mediarepresentationer av ldre personer n s l nge varit inriktad p individers anv ndning av sociala medier medan representationer av ldre personer i organisationers sociala medier f tt lite uppm rksamhet Denna avhandling syftar till att ka kunskapen om hur ldre personer framst lls i sociala media samt om lderism i media F rhoppningen r att kunskapen ska kunna bidra till att motverka lderism i media genom att p verka s v l policyer som praktik Avhandlingen best r av fyra artiklar och delstudier som utforskar sociala media representationer av ldre personer som skapats av lokala myndigheter och medief retag med ett s rskilt fokus p hur ldre personer framst lls i sociala medier samt hur medieinneh ll r rande ldre personer produceras Artikel 1 3 och 4 omfattar empiriska analyser av sociala media representationer av ldre personer som skapats av svenska lokala myndigheter och kinesiska medief retag Artikel 2 presenterar en empirisk analys av den produktionsprocess som f reg r de stereotypiska tredje lder representationer som i tidigare studier visat sig vara framtr dande i lokala myndigheters sociala media De metoder som i avhandlingen anv nds f r att analysera representationer av ldre personer och ldrande p olika sociala medieplattformar dvs lokala myndigheters Facebook sidor video str mningsplattformen Tencent Video och mikrobloggplattformen Sina Weibo r inneh llsanalys och tematisk analys Tematisk analys anv nds ven f r att analysera intervjudata r rande den process som f reg r att vissa stereotypa bilder av ldre personer r framtr dande i lokala myndigheters sociala medier Avhandlingens resultat belyser komplexiteten och nyanserna i den representationsprocess och de betydelser som skapas av dessa representationer av ldre personer i sociala medier Mer specifikt belyser avhandlingen tre s tt varigenom representationer av ldre personer i sociala medier kan leda till lderism 1 stereotypifiering av ldre personer genom betydelseb rande praktiker 2 genom att inneb rden av representationerna av ldre personer och ldrande framst lls och f rhandlas av akt rer med olika maktrelationer och 3 genom mediatiserade institutioners anv ndning av formella och informella regler f r sociala media En syntes av resultaten fr n de fyra empiriska artiklarna och delstudierna indikerar att en stereotyp tredje ldern representation r framtr dande i de olika organisatoriska sammanhang och de olika typer av sociala medier som studerats Syntesen pekar d rmed ocks mot att en stereotyp tredje ldern representation kommit att blivit vedertagen i organisationers sociala media n got som kan ses som en form av institutionaliserad lderism Det r d rmed av st rsta vikt att fr mja kunskap och ka medvetenheten om de risker som r f rknyppade med representationer av ldre m nniskor i sociala media Avhandlingen f rdjupar v r f rst else av lderism i media och bidrar till att skapa evidensbaserade policyrekommendationer f r

International Handbook of Population Aging Peter Uhlenberg, 2009-04-29 The International Handbook of Population Aging examines research on a wide array of the profound implications of population aging. It demonstrates how the world is changing through population aging and how demography is changing in response to it. Aging in the Past David I. Kertzer, 2024-06-04 Thanks to improved food, medicine, and living conditions, the average age of the population is increasing throughout the modern industrialized world. Yet despite the recent upsurge of scholarly interest in the lives of older people and the blossoming of historical demography, little historical demographic attention has been paid to the lives of the elderly. A landmark volume, Aging in the Past, marks the emergence of the historical demographic study of aging. Following a masterly explication of the new field by Peter Laslett, leading scholars in family history and historical demography offer new research results and fresh analyses that greatly increase our understanding of aging historically and across cultures. Focusing primarily on post-Industrial Europe and the United States, they explore a range of issues under the broad topics of living arrangements, widowhood, and retirement and mortality. This important work provides a much-needed historical perspective on and suggests possible alternative solutions to the problems of the aged. Contributors: George Alter, Rudolf Andorka, Allen C. Goodman, Myron P. Gutmann, Michael R. Haines, E. A. Hammel, Tamara K. Hareven, Nancy Karweit, David I. Kertzer, Peter Laslett, Andrejs Plakans, Roger L. Ransom, Daniel Scott Smith, Richard Sutch, Peter Uhlenberg, Richard Wall, Charles Wetherell. This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program, which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice, reach, and impact. Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893, Voices Revived makes high-quality, peer-reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print-on-demand technology. This title was originally published in 1995. The Decline of Life Susannah R. Ottaway, 2004-02-05 The Decline of Life is an ambitious and absorbing study of old age in eighteenth-century England. Drawing on a wealth of sources—literature, correspondence, poor house and workhouse documents, and diaries—Susannah Ottaway considers a wide range of experiences and expectations of age in the period and demonstrates that the central concern of ageing individuals was to continue to live as independently as possible into their last days. Ageing men and women stayed closely connected to their families and communities in relationships characterized by mutual support and reciprocal obligations. Despite these aspects of continuity, however, older individuals' ability to maintain their autonomy and the nature of the support available to them once they did fall into necessity declined significantly in the last decades of the century. As a result, old age was increasingly marginalized. Historical demographers, historical gerontologists, sociologists, social historians, and women's historians will find this book essential reading. Ageing, Independence, and the Life Course Sara Arber, 1993 Using a life course approach which emphasises the importance of recognising the effects of different life experiences on different groups of individuals and the interlinkage between phases of the life course, the book explores the ways in which bases of structural advantage and disadvantage have cumulative impacts on the situation of older people

Understanding the Life Course Lorraine Green, 2016-12-20 Understanding the Life Course provides a uniquely comprehensive guide to the entire life course from an interdisciplinary perspective Combining important insights from sociology and psychology the book presents the concepts theoretical underpinnings in an accessible style supported by real life examples From birth and becoming a parent to death and grieving for the loss of others Lorraine Green explores all stages of the life course through key research studies and theories in conjunction with issues of social inequality and critical examination of lay viewpoints She highlights the many ways the life course can be interpreted including themes of linearity and multidirectionality continuity and discontinuity and the interplay between nature and nurture The second edition updates key data and includes additional material on topics such as new technologies changing markers of transitions to adulthood active ageing resilience and neuropsychology This comprehensive approach will continue to be essential reading for students on vocational programmes such as social work and nursing and will provide thought provoking insight into the wider contexts of the life course for students of psychology and sociology
