A Grammar Of Madi Mouton Grammar Library:

Parts of Speech Umberto Ansaldi, Jan Don, Roland Pfau, 2010-09-15 Parts of Speech are a central aspect of linguistic theory and analysis Though a long established tradition in Western linguistics and philosophy has assumed the validity of Parts of Speech in the study of language there are still many questions left unanswered For example should Parts of Speech be treated as descriptive tools or are they to be considered universal constructs Is it possible to come up with cross linguistically valid formal categories or are categories of language structure ultimately language specific Should they be defined semantically syntactically or otherwise Do non Indo European languages reveal novel aspects of categorical assignment This volume attempts to answer these and other fundamental questions for linguistic theory and its methodology by offering a range of contributions that spans diverse theoretical persuasions and contributes to our understanding of Parts of Speech with analyses of new data sets These articles were originally published in Studies in Language 32 3 2008 A Grammar of Ma'di Mairi John Blackings, Nigel Fabb, 2003 The series builds an extensive collection of high quality descriptions of languages around the world Each volume offers a comprehensive grammatical description of a single language together with fully analyzed sample texts and if appropriate a word list and other relevant information which is available on the language in question There are no restrictions as to language family or area and although special attention is paid to hitherto undescribed languages new and valuable treatments of better known languages are also included No theoretical model is imposed on the authors the only criterion is a high standard of scientific quality Quotative Indexes in African

Languages Tom Güldemann, 2008-11-06 The book represents the results of a synchronic and diachronic cross African survey of quotative indexes These are linguistic expressions that signal in the ongoing discourse the presence of a quote often called direct reported speech For this purpose 39 African languages were selected to represent the genealogical and geographical diversity of the continent The study is based primarily on this language sample in particular on the analysis of quotative indexes and related expressions from a text corpus of each sample language but also includes a wide range of data from the published literature on other African as well as non African languages It is the first typological investigation of direct reported discourse of this magnitude in a large group of languages The book may thus serve as a starting point of similar studies in other geographical areas or even with a global scope as well as stimulate more detailed investigations of particular languages The results of the African survey challenge several prevailing cross linguistic generalizations regarding quotative indexes and reported discourse constructions as a whole of which two are of particular interest In the syntactic domain where reported discourse has mostly been dealt with under so called sentential complementation the study supports the minority view that direct reported discourse and also a large portion of indirect reported discourse show hardly any evidence for the claim that the reported clause is a syntactic object complement of some matrix verb With respect to grammaticalization the work concludes that speech verbs are against common belief not a frequent source of quotatives

complementizers and other related markers Far more frequent sources are markers of similarity and manner generic verbs of equation inchoativity and action and pronominals referring to the quote or the speaker Another more general conclusion of the study is that especially direct reported discourse can be fruitfully analyzed as part of a larger linguistic domain called mimesis This comprises expressions which represent a state of affairs by means of enactment performance rather than with the help of canonical linguistic signs and includes besides reported discourse world referring bodily gestures ideophone like signs and non linguistic sound

The Evolution of Grammar Joan Bybee,Revere Perkins,William Pagliuca,1994-11-15 Joan Bybee and her colleagues present a new theory of the evolution of grammar that links structure and meaning in a way that directly challenges most contemporary versions of generative grammar This study focuses on the use and meaning of grammatical markers of tense aspect and modality and identifies a universal set of grammatical categories The authors demonstrate that the semantic content of these categories evolves gradually and that this process of evolution is strikingly similar across unrelated languages Through a survey of seventy six languages in twenty five different phyla the authors show that the same paths of change occur universally and that movement along these paths is in one direction only This analysis reveals that lexical substance evolves into grammatical substance through various mechanisms of change such as metaphorical extension and the conventionalization of implicature Grammaticization is always accompanied by an increase in frequency of the grammatical marker providing clear evidence that language use is a major factor in the evolution of synchronic language states The Evolution of Grammar has important implications for the development of language and for the study of cognitive processes in general

The Stories of Siko and Yowao : Jarawara texts Alan Vogel,2025-09-24 The Jarawaras are a small Amerindian community in lowland Amazonia in the state of Amazonas Brazil Their language is one of half a dozen languages of the Arawan family Yowao and Siko both now deceased were elderly Jarawara storytellers Their stories are valuable from several points of view First is their literary value some of the stories are quite humorous for example Secondly they are a window into the life of the Jarawaras their social relations history and traditional religion Finally the interlinear presentation of the texts will be of interest to linguists The volume contains an introduction which gives some background on the language and the culture This volume has English translations but a version with translations in

Portuguese for Brazilian readers is also being planned

Grammatical gender and linguistic complexity II Francesca Di Garbo ,Bruno Olsson ,Bernhard Wälchli ,2019 The many facets of grammatical gender remain one of the most fruitful areas of linguistic research and pose fascinating questions about the origins and development of complexity in language The present work is a two volume collection of 13 chapters on the topic of grammatical gender seen through the prism of linguistic complexity The contributions discuss what counts as complex and or simple in grammatical gender systems whether the distribution of gender systems across the world s languages relates to the language ecology and social history of speech communities Contributors demonstrate how the complexity of gender systems can be studied synchronically both in individual languages and over large cross linguistic samples and diachronically by exploring how gender systems change over time Volume two consists of three chapters providing diachronic and typological case studies followed by a final chapter discussing old and new theoretical and empirical challenges in the study of the dynamics of gender complexity This volume is preceded by volume one which in addition to three chapters on the theoretical foundations of gender complexity contains six chapters on grammatical gender and complexity in individual languages and language families of Africa New Guinea and South Asia

Language at Large Alexandra Aikhenvald, R.M.W. Dixon, 2011-07-27 The volume brings together important essays on syntax and semantics by Aikhenvald and Dixon It focusses on topics in linguistic typology the analysis of previously undescribed languages and issues in the grammar and lexicography of English
