Rx Hollywood Michael DeAngelis, 2018-01-01 How films of the 1960s and early 1970s framed therapeutic issues as problems of human communication and individual psychological problems as social ones Rx Hollywood investigates how therapy surfaced in the themes representations and narrative strategies of a changing film industry In the 1960s and early 1970s American cinema was struggling to address adult audiences who were increasingly demanding films that confronted contemporary issues Focusing upon five fields of therapeutic inquiry therapist patient dynamics female frigidity and male impotence marital discord hallucinogenic drug use and the dynamics of confession Michael DeAngelis argues that the films of this period reveal an emergent common tendency of therapy to work toward the formation of a stronger sense of interpersonal community social and political engagement counteracting alienation and social division in the spirit of connection and community Prior to the 1960s therapy had been considered an introspective process one that emphasized contemplation and insight and prompted the patient to investigate memories and past traumas In the 1960s however therapy would move toward more humanistic client centered community group and encounter models that deemphasized the there and then of past feelings and experiences and embraced the here and now of the present These kinds of therapy promised to heal the self through a process of reaching out helping individuals to connect with communities support networks and other like minded individuals who shared a needed sense of belonging Drawing on a wide range of films including Marnie The Boston Strangler The Chapman Report Carnal Knowledge Divorce American Style Diary of a Mad Housewife Guess Who's Coming to Dinner and Five Easy Pieces DeAngelis shows how American culture framed therapeutic issues as problems of human communication developing treatment strategies that
