about her identity was that she d lost her hearing in an accident and the proprietor of the circus had treated her horribly and and in her cache of secret personal private things she owned one thing as precious to her as life itself a bracelet made of brown human hair with the initials MG tied into it A Game of Hide-and-seek Tennant Redbank,2009 Tinker Bell is it in a game of fairy hide and seek Hide and Seek Wilkie Collins,1856 Hide and Seek W. Wilkie Collins,2025-02-13 Reprint of the original first published in 1856 Hide and Seek Wilkie Collins,2020 One of the principal characters in Mr Collins s Hide and Seek is an artist but the writer has not sketched him as labouring in his vocation amid alternations of despair and hope The painter in this story he says only assumes to be a homely study from nature done by a student who has had more opportunities than most men out of the profession of observing what the novelties of artist life and the eccentricities of artist character are really like when they are looked at close It may be necessary to mention this by way of warning as I have ventured on the startling novelty in fiction of trying to make an artist interesting without representing him as friendless consumptive and penniless to say nothing of the more daring innovation of attempting to extract some amusement from his character and yet not exhibiting him as a speaker of bad English a reckless contractor of debts and an utterly irreclaimable sot Mr Collins has perfectly succeeded in his attempt Valentine Blyth the painter is an enthusiast in his art but an amiable rational sensible though not strong minded man in fact a naturalist in his art and out of it a painter who loves his profession so dearly and fancies himself so well able to grapple with it at all points that he hesitates at nothing whether it be the portrait of a horse or of a baby in swaddling clothes a grand classical landscape with Bacchanalian nymphs or Columbus in sight of the New World Antonina and Basil have placed Mr Collins among the most popular novelists and Hide and Seek will not lessen his reputation but the contrary The heroine of the story is a deaf and dumb orphan girl of great beauty picked up by Mr Blyth from a company of strolling players taken home by him and hidden lest she should be found by any chance relatives as a companion to his invalid wife in time however there comes one to seek her hence the title of the story The Madonna of Mr Collins is a pure and lovely creation reminding us of the Nina in Bulwer s Last Days of Pompeii The idea of making a young girl bereft of the powers of speech and hearing but exquisitely sensitive to that of sight and able to appreciate all the sources of enjoyment which a true painter feels to make such an one a helpmate in the studio as well as the friend and companion of another woman delicate in mind as feeble in body was a new and most happy thought these two characters are touchingly and charmingly described There are others of a different description Mr Zachary Thorpe who endeavours to force his son to take kindly to religious teaching by rendering it irksome and distasteful how many Mr Thorpes are there in the world and in consequence he breaks through all restraint and runs riot Then there is a strange wild fellow called Mat who has travelled into savage regions lost his scalp in a foray with wild Indians and comes home from the diggings with his tomahawk his tobacco pouch some bear skins and his pockets lined with bank notes These are the chief personages of Mr Collins s tale we shall leave our readers to find out for themselves what they do and what becomes of them all The writer s

observation of nature animate and inanimate and his powers of description are clear and vigorous he can be humorous or pathetic gentle or boisterous can paint the tastefully ornamented chamber of the bed ridden invalid and its inmates or the noisy revelries of the dissipated frequenters of the Temple of Harmony or the peculiarities of a painter's studio with the hand of a master
