The Red and the Black Stendhal

Stendhal, 2019-02-07 The Red and the Black is a historical psychological novel by Stendhal published in French in 1830 as Le Rouge et le noir. The novel, set in France during the Second Restoration, 1815-30, is a powerful character study of Julien Sorel, an ambitious young man who uses seduction as a tool for advancement. M. de Rênal, the mayor of the provincial town of Verrières, hires Julien Sorel to be his children's tutor. Julien is only a carpenter's son but dreams of following in the footsteps of his hero, Napoleon. However, in Julien's time, men gain power in the Church and not in the army. Even though he is training to become a priest, Julien decides to seduce the mayor's wife, Mme de Rênal, because he thinks that it is his duty. They become lovers, but M. Valenod, the mayor's political adversary, finds out about the affair and begins to spread rumors. M. de Rênal is profoundly embarrassed, but his wife convinces him that the rumors are false. M. Chelan, the town priest, and Julien's mentor, sends him to the Besançon seminary to avoid any further scandal. The director of the seminary, M. Pirard, likes Julien and encourages him to become a great priest. Julien does very well at the seminary but only because he wants to make a fortune and succeed in French society. The other priests at the seminary are not aware of Julien's hypocrisy but are jealous of his intelligence. M. Pirard is disgusted with the political involvement of the Church and resigns. His aristocratic benefactor, the Marquis de la Mole, wants M. Pirard to be his personal secretary in Paris, but M. Pirard tells him to hire Julien instead. Julien is both enthralled and repulsed by Parisian society at the same time. He tries to fit in among the nobles, but they treat him as a social inferior. However, the Marquis's daughter, Mathilde, falls in love with Julien, and they become lovers. When Mathilde gets pregnant and tells the Marquis about her affair, he is furious but soon ennobles Julien so Mathilde can marry him. Julien finally has the aristocratic title he always wanted. But Mme de Rênal sends the Marquis a letter denouncing Julien as a womanizer only concerned with making his fortune. The Marquis then refuses to let Mathilde marry Julien, who furiously returns to Verrières and shoots Mme de Rênal. She survives, but Julien is sentenced to death anyway. Mme de Rênal forgives

Julien and dies of love three days after his execution Sparknotes The Portrait of a Lady - Henry James Henry James, 2025-04-23 The Portrait of a Lady by Henry James is a nuanced exploration of personal freedom moral responsibility and the social expectations placed upon women in the 19th century The novel follows Isabel Archer a spirited and independent American who travels to Europe seeking a life of purpose and autonomy However her journey takes a darker turn as she becomes entangled in a marriage that threatens her sense of self and freedom forcing her to confront the consequences of her choices and the limitations imposed by society Since its publication in 1881 The Portrait of a Lady has been celebrated for its psychological depth sophisticated narrative style and incisive commentary on the tension between individual will and societal pressures Through the contrast between the New World and the Old Henry James crafts a powerful depiction of a woman s struggle to define her own path in a world that seeks to shape her The novel s enduring significance lies in its exploration of identity independence and the often painful pursuit of self knowledge The Portrait of a Lady remains a cornerstone of modern literature offering timeless insight into the complexities of human relationships and the quiet strength required to live with integrity
