A Handful Of Thistles Collected Papers In Moral Conviction:

A Handful of Thistles Lewis A. Coser, 1988-01-01 This selection of essays by one of the most eminent sociologists of our time represents a selection of his analytical and moral or political writing over a lifetime of work The book is organized thematically rather than chronologically and is divided into four parts papers on the uses of sociology on ideas and ideologies on sociological analysis and a final section entitled professing sociology While the collection demonstrates maturation the author's central preoccupations have remained constant over the years A reflective autobiographical introduction places the author's choice of problems and the development of his ideas in the social and cultural context of his life and his work He confesses to having experienced in his life and his work being a stranger within the gate and believes that this sense of marginality has both informed and influenced his thinking And he sees the social conflicts that shook the world during his young adulthood as having creative as well as destructive consequences

Persuasions and Prejudices Irving Louis Horowitz, 1989-01-01 With the presumption that review essays and statements written for special occasions may reveal as much about the writer as those written about Irving Louis Horowitz has collected thirty five years of his criticism and commentary Included are comments on the famous near famous and infamous sociologists political scientists and assorted literary figures in between Taken as a whole this volume will surprise and delight readers who are acquainted with Horowitz's other works as well as those who are interested in the people he writes about Written with characteristic verve and nerve these statements sometimes combine two or more reviews into one statement often of substantial length Altogether the collection gives a picture of twentieth century social science as an ongoing dialogue within itself about the nature of social reality as well as the nature of the disciplines seeking to define that reality The results are sometimes serious other times amusing but uniformly compelling The book covers Arendt to Zetterberg and such major figures in between as Becker Bell de Jouvenel Mills Parsons Solzhenitsyn and more than eighty other leading lights who have had an effect on the contemporary social landscape All are critically examined sometimes positively other times negatively Long recognized as a major figure in his own right Horowitz writes with the kind of refreshing frankness experts will appreciate and the general reader will understand The underlying assumption behind the volume giving its disparate parts a unified characteristic is that together these observations on others amount to a general theory of social science held by the author Whether his larger ambition is accepted or disputed there is no doubt that the volume provides a standard against which to measure the literary quality of reviewing in the world of professional social research

A Blend of Contradictions Ann-Mari Sallerberg, Contradiction forms the basis of all social phenomena Anyone who has read Georg Simmel will perceive his fascination with the essential complexity that characterizes human interaction Look for contradiction he seems to say and you will find something of vital importance Ann Mari Sallerberg applies central themes from Simmel trust subordination under principle adventure and the position of the poor and applies them to contemporary phenomena In so doing she both illuminates Simmel and reveals how empirical analysis can be extended with insights from his work. Written in nontechnical language, this book will be of interest to scholars and professionals in a broad range of behavioral sciences. The examples that illustrate it will make the book of particular interest to those concerned with health care marketing and consumer behavior as well as those working in the caring professions.

Milestones and Millstones Otto N. Larsen, From the 1960s onwards the clothing industry in the Netherlands and elsewhere in the European Union experienced a deep crisis. Numerous went bankrupt and even more so workers lost their jobs. Imports from low wage countries started providing the bulk of retailers' collections. In the high wage economy of the Netherlands there seemed to be no more room for labour intensive industry such as clothing. However in the 1980s a surprising development took place. In Amsterdam a substantial number of new small clothing firms were established focusing on short cycle fashion production. Most of these firms were run by Turkish immigrants. During the 1990s most of these firms disappeared again. At the same time the pattern of imports changed as well with nearby countries in the Mediterranean region and Eastern Europe increasing their share of the fashionable clothing market. Migration and fashion played an important role in these processes. In this study Stephan Raes analyses these developments and tries to explain why they occurred. He offers an elaborate multilevel theoretical framework to deal with the changes in the spatial organization of clothing supply. His analysis shows how large retailers have become the most powerful players in the Dutch clothing sector and how the changes in the spatial pattern of clothing supply have to be understood against the changing logistics of their sourcing. The study takes us from the history of the Dutch clothing industry in the 19th century to the detailed description of migrants entrepreneurs in the sector and the changes in trade patterns. It focuses on the interaction of retailers with other actors in the sector such as suppliers, consumers and governments. Finally it takes place these developments against the background of transformations in the political economy of the Netherlands and Turkey.

Survival and Sociology Kurt H. Wolff, Making a Difference Irwin Deutscher, Emphasis on measurement techniques can interfere with understanding how well particular social programs in their field work. In Making a Difference: The Practice of Sociology Irwin Deutscher links traditional sociological concerns with applied sociology in an effort to overcome this problem. He contributes to the debate over the extent to which health, educational and social programs initiated by the Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson administrations have been successful in intimate human terms. The work is divided into five parts. Toward a Useful Sociology is a collection of essays concerning the causes of social problems and the uses of evaluation research. On Doing Applied Research explores research tools and stereotypes. The Raised Eyebrow points out obstructions to useful program evaluation. Vignettes deals with specific areas of social programs: public housing, aging, family disaster relief, small town petty crime, the integration of public facilities, delinquency, nursing and the education of tribal people. Deutscher believes that the introduction of a sociological perspective can provide a positive element to interdisciplinary pursuits. This belief as well as his fresh perspectives on both the strengths and limitations inherent in applied sociology offer the field a revitalizing lift. As such this highly informative thought provoking volume will be of interest to sociologists and policymakers in health education crime welfare housing

Liturgy and Hermeneutics Joyce Ann Zimmerman, 1999 By its very nature hermeneutics the art or science of interpreting is interdisciplinary It is equally important for scholars of literature philosophy biblical texts and theology In spite of the fact that interpretation has long been an important concern for Scripture exegetes and that in recent years liturgists have paid increasing attention to methods there is no major work that specifically addresses the issues of hermeneutics for liturgy Liturgy and Hermeneutics fills that void In Liturgy and Hermeneutics Joyce Ann Zimmerman explains that all communication requires some interpretation even everyday conversations in which we are hardly aware of it But a great deal of communication is far more complex Anytime we try to describe such things as an idea a concept or an experience we are well beyond ordinary language use and into the realm of language as a symbol system Since symbols have both a literal meaning and another level of meaning available only through interpretation much of our communication is hermeneutical Liturgy is no exception it too is hermeneutical In the past everything about liturgy seemed clear and understandable and the rituals were denotative However Zimmerman argues that lack of interpretation may have deprived worshipers of the richness proper to liturgy A non interpretive approach to liturgy tends to reduce it to rubrics or received grace We must likewise be wary of an interpretation of liturgy that is too subjective Only authentic interpretation examines liturgy's richness while remaining faithful to its tradition doctrinal content and ritual expressions In Liturgy and Hermeneutics Zimmerman specifically addresses hermeneutics and its use in liturgy and liturgical studies Her purpose is twofold 1 to introduce readers to a complex body of literature so they can become literate in a technical field and 2 to guide readers through the complex issues and strategies involved in interpreting liturgy as text as ritual as life Zimmerman does not promote a single hermeneutic approach but instead points out the advantages and disadvantages of various approaches Chapters are What's at Stake Overview of Hermeneutical Theory and Issues Critical Methods Post critical Methods Hermeneutics and Liturgical Studies Today and an epilogue that raises questions yet to be comprehensively addressed by liturgists
