Biogeography And Ecology Of The Island Of Newfoundland:

Biogeography and Ecology of the Island of Newfoundland R. South, 1983-03-31 The Ecology of Areas with Serpentinized Rocks B.A. Roberts, J. Proctor, 2012-12-06 The Pantanal of Poconé Charles W. Heckman, 2013-03-14

There are many famous wetlands in the world that have been deemed important for the homeostasis of the biosphere and accorded some form of protected status in view of the richness of their flora and fauna. The Pantanal located almost directly in the center of the South American continent is among the largest such wetlands in the world. It is in fact the largest wetland that is still in a nearly natural state and has not been extensively modified by man for agriculture. The extent of the region covered by flood waters at the end of each rainy season varies from year to year sometimes considerably so estimates of the exact area it occupies have varied enormously. The size of the Pantanal has been reported to be between 80 000 km² Bonetto 1975 and 250 000 km² Tundisi and Matsumura Tundisi 1985. The most commonly accepted estimates at the present time are approximately 130 000 to 140 000 km² supported by estimates made from Nimbus 7 satellite observations Hamilton et al 1996. However Por 1995 suggested that the area extending into Bolivia and Paraguay has not been satisfactorily surveyed leading him to accept the figure of 200 000 km² as the area of the entire Pantanal including all of its extensions. The main reason for the year to year variation in the extent of the flooding is the considerable difference in timing of the rainfall on the watershed.

The Freshwater Ecosystems of Suriname P.E. Ouboter, 2012-12-06. Since the limnological research on the man made Brokopondo Reservoir in the sixties numerous data have been collected on the ecology of Surinam rivers and swamps. This book is a compilation of these data it is the first comprehensive survey of the aquatic ecology of one of the peripheral areas of Amazonia. The geomorphology of the country situated on the Guyana Shield is the main factor determining the limnological properties of rivers and creeks. This results in an overall picture that is quite different from Amazonia. The emphasis of The Ecosystems of Suriname is on the living aquatic resources including aquatic and swamp vegetation phyto and zooplankton macroinvertebrates fish amphibians reptiles and mammals. Although most of Suriname is still in a pristine state the human impact on fresh waters is considerable in those areas of rapid economic development emphasizing the necessity of conservation measures specially tailored for aquatic ecosystems. The Ecosystems of Suriname is a valuable acquisition for all scientists environmental managers and others interested in tropical aquatic ecology.

Lough Neagh R.B. Wood, R.V. Smith, 2013-04-18. Lough Neagh is the largest lake in the British Isles. It covers an area of 383 km² being 30 km along its longest axis. From pre historic times the lake and its rivers influenced the settlements of man in the role of a fishery and communication link with the interior of Ireland. Ireland's first canal completed in 1787 linked the small but significant coal deposits of Tyrone to Dublin by way of the lough and later the Lagen Canal became an important commercial route to the new city of Belfast. Today only sand barge transport persists but the lough supports Europe's largest eel fishery and provides commercial salmon trout and perch catches besides acting as an important centre for recreational pursuits.

Increasingly it has become the major water resource for Northern Ireland supplying much of the demand for the heavily populated Belfast area Biologically the lough is rich sustaining enormous invertebrate populations of for example chironomids and gammarids alongside the comparatively exotic glacial relict Mysis relicta Its bird life makes the lough an area of very special conservation interest as a Ramsar site The book describes the basic ecology of the lough with particular emphasis on both the interaction of the physical chemical and biological components and the role of ecology in resource management Extensive recent researches are set in geological geographical and historical context and together with palaeolimnological studies of the sediments are used to trace major changes in the ecology of the lough under man's influence especially in the past 100 years

The Pantanal of Mato Grosso (Brazil) F.D. Por, 2012-12-06 Until now there has never been a monograph devoted to the Pantanal the world's largest wetland The subject has received scant attention in the international literature so a number of scattered Portuguese papers are reviewed for an English language readership The book presents a broad treatment of the Pantanal ranging from geology to flora fauna and the human presence The publication of this book is most timely and will be of crucial importance in decisions affecting the ambitious project for a second South American inland Waterway

Global to Local: Ecological Land Classification Richard A. Sims, Ian G.W. Corns, Karel Klinka, 2012-12-06 Ecological Land Classification ELC refers to the description of land resources at a range of spatial resolutions i.e. global to local and for a range of purposes or values The emerging science of ELC is in fact a very carefully integrated blend of vegetation and earth sciences climatology cartography and ecology with a range of new technologies and methodologies including computer based geographic information systems remote sensing and simulation modelling This publication defines the current state of the art of ELC It provides particular insight into the role of ELC in current and future forest resource planning and management and emphasizes its application and usefulness at various spatial scales for a variety of geographic locations and under a range of management scenarios constraints The book is an invaluable and substantial reference source about the current trends in ELC and will be of particular value to ecologists foresters geographers resource managers wildlife biologists GIS and remote sensing specialists educators and students
