

THE AMERICAN POLITICAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

"There is the statesmanship of thought and there is the statesmanship of action . . . the man who has the time, the discrimination, and the sagacity to collect and comprehend the principal facts and the man who must act upon them must draw near to one another and feel that they are engaged in a common enterprise."

Woodrow Wilson
APSA Presidential Address, 1910

The American Political Science Association is the major professional organization in the United States whose members are engaged in the study of politics. Founded in 1903, the Association provides members with services to facilitate research, teaching, and professional development.

Association membership, numbering over 12,000 individuals and institutions, is composed primarily of political scientists doing research and teaching in U.S. colleges and universities, although a tenth of its members reside in seventy other countries around the world and a fourth pursue careers outside academia—in government, research and consulting firms, and private enterprise.

Membership privileges include:

- Subscription to three publications—The American Political Science Review, a quarterly scholarly journal of research reports and book reviews; PS, a quarterly journal of political ideas and the profession; and NEWS for Teachers of Political Science, a quarterly newspaper on teaching and learning materials;
- Discounts on subscriptions to over 60 other periodicals;
- Qualifying for membership in the Personnel Service;
- Lower Annual Meeting registration fee and hotel rates;
- Qualifying for membership on Association committees and governing bodies;
- Voting for Association officers and members of its Council;
- Group insurance plans;
- Qualifying for membership in Organized Sections.

The Association publishes many books, monographs and guides on research, graduate study, careers and education, ranging from Political Science: The State of the Discipline to Alternative Careers for Political Scientists. Ongoing programs and services include the Congressional Fellowship Program, the annual survey of departments, and SETUPS: Supplemental Empirical Teaching Units in Political Science. Two recent initiatives are Project '87, which publishes the quarterly magazine, this Constitution: A Bicentennial Chronicle, and CONGRESS: WE THE PEOPLE, a 26-part television series.

Divided Government Peter F. Galderisi, Roberta Q. Herzberg, Peter McNamara, 1996 As the relationship between the executive and legislative branches of the federal government becomes increasingly hostile more Americans are wondering whether national politics can be described as gridlock or good government This provocative and insightful collection of original essays provides answers by exploring the complicated nature and multiple implications of divided government in the United States The distinguished contributors analyze the consequences of the 1992 and 1994 elections and argue that discussions of divided government are too narrowly focused on the issue of partisan division of governmental institutions. Divided Government convincingly shows how political scientists have downplayed the significance of Constitutional rules, legislative policy disaggregation, and the decline of party organization. They conclude that divided government in its broader institutional context will continue regardless of which parties control the different branches. Ulrich's International Periodicals Directory Carolyn Farquhar Ulrich, 1998
