Time and Meaning in History Nathan Rotenstreich, 2012-12-06 There are several characteristics of Nathan Rotenstreich's work which are striking his thoughtful writings are both subtle and deep they are steeped in his critical appreciation of other thinkers of this and preceding times an appreciation which is formed by his learned understanding of the history of philosophy and with all this he has an original and independent intelligence He has from time to time brought his skills to bear upon historical scholarship most notably perhaps in his book Between Past and Present 1958 2nd edition 1973 his interpretive essays in the philosophy of history Philosophy History and Politics 1976 and his scholarly work concerned with the influence of historical development upon modern Jewish thought Tradition and Reality 1972 Related to these and equally works of that philosophical humanity which Professor Rotenstreich embodies are his Humanism in the Contemporary Era 1963 Spirit and Man An Essay on Being and Value 1963 and Reflection and Action 1983 Rotenstreich combines both the naturalistic and the phenomenological attitudes in an interesting and illuminating way through the full spectrum of issues in the philosophy of history in this century Surely he sets boundaries to any doubtful extrapolation Not only would he bring the understanding of history back from those who claim it as only a positive science but equally would he prevent the transformation of that understanding into merely speculative inquiry Being Married, Doing Gender Caroline

Dryden, 2014-02-25 In one of the first psychological studies of women in heterosexual relationships Caroline Dryden examines the social context of their experiences and emotional struggles Unlike the developmental literature in which women are studied only as mothers or the clinical literature which has little theoretical basis Being Married Doing Gender places case study material in the context of the power balance between women and men Caroline Dryden finds that there are contradictions between stereotypical gender roles and the maintenance of an equal partnership that can cause problems for both women and men Being Married Doing Gender will be valuable to students studying psychology or gender and women's studies and to marriage guidance counsellors and psychotherapists EBOOK: Partnerships In Family Care Mike

Nolan, Ulla Lundh, John Keady, Gordon Grant, 2003-08-16 What are the key features of partnerships between family and professional carers How do partnerships change over time What is needed to help create the best working partnerships Forging partnerships between service users family carers and service providers is a key theme in both the policy and academic literatures However what such partnerships mean and how they can be created and sustained while responding to change over time is far from clear This book considers how family and professional carers can work together more effectively in order to provide the highest quality of care to people who need support in order to remain in their own homes It adopts a temporal perspective looking at key transitions in caregiving and suggests the most appropriate types of help at particular points in time It draws on both empirical and theoretical sources emerging from several countries and relating to a number of differing caregiving contexts in order to illustrate the essential elements of relationship centred care Partnerships in Family Care will be important reading for all health care students and professionals with an interest in community and home
