Progress Unchained Peter J. Bowler, 2021-03-04 Progress Unchained reinterprets the history of the idea of progress using parallels between evolutionary biology and changing views of human history Early concepts of progress in both areas saw it as the ascent of a linear scale of development toward a final goal The chain of being defined a hierarchy of living things with humans at the head while social thinkers interpreted history as a development toward a final paradise or utopia Darwinism reconfigured biological progress as a tree of life with multiple lines of advance not necessarily leading to humans each driven by the rare innovations that generate entirely new functions Popular writers such as H G Wells used a similar model to depict human progress with competing technological innovations producing ever more rapid changes in society Bowler shows that as the idea of progress has become open ended and unpredictable a variety of alternative futures have been imagined Understanding Human Development Ursula M. Staudinger, Ulman E.R. Lindenberger, 2012-12-06 K Warner Schaie I am pleased to write a foreword for this interesting volume particularly as over many years I have had the privilege of interacting with the editors and a majority of the contributors in various professional roles as a colleague mentor or research collaborator The editors begin their introduction by asking why one would want to read yet another book on human development They immediately answer their question by pointing out that many developmentally oriented texts and other treatises neglect the theoretical foundations of human development and fail to embed psychological constructs within the multidisciplinary context so essential to understanding development This volume provides a positive remedy to past deficiencies in volumes on human development with a well organized structure that leads the reader from a general introduction through the basic processes to methodological issues and the relation of developmental constructs to social context and biological infrastructure This approach does not surprise After all the editors and most of the contributors at one time or an other had a connection to the Max Planck Institute of Human Development in Berlin whether as students junior scientists or senior visitors That institute under the leader ship of Paul Baltes has been instrumental in pursuing a systematic lifespan approach to the study of cognition and personality Over the past two decades it has influenced the careers of a generation of scientists who have advocated long term studies of human development in an interdisciplinary context different from when we were infants Why and how does one stage of development follow the next Are the changes that we experience abrupt in nature or smooth and predictable Author Neil J Salkind reflects on such critical questions to help readers understand what happens along the way as one develops from infancy through later life This book provides a comprehensive view of the primary theoretical models of human development including those from the biological psychoanalytic behavioral and cognitive developmental perspectives Along with a brief discussion of a historical background for each of these approaches An Introduction to Theories of Human Development examines the application of these theories to various aspects of human development such as the effectiveness of early intervention individual differences adolescence and sociobiology Features of this text A final integrative chapter compares the various theories presented in the book using Murry Sidman s model of six criteria for judging a theory to help develop students skills for critically assessing theory Classic approaches to understanding human behavior across the lifespan are also examined Pedagogical features such as chapter opening quotes boxed highlights key terms a glossary and websites for further reading enhance student understanding of everyday human behavior An Introduction to Theories of Human Development is an accessible text for advanced undergraduate students in the social and behavioral sciences including such fields as psychology education human services nursing sociology social welfare and human development and family studies

Human Biodiversity Jonathan M. Marks,2001 Are humans unique This simple question at the very heart of the hybrid field of biological anthropology poses one of the false dichotomies with a stereotypical humanist answering in the affirmative and a stereotypical scientist answering in the negative The study of human biology is different from the study of the biology of other species In the simplest terms people s lives and welfare may depend upon it in a sense that they may not depend on the study of other scientific subjects Where science is used to validate ideas four out of five scientists preferring a brand of cigarettes or toothpaste there is a tendency to accept the judgment as authoritative without asking the kinds of questions we might ask of other citizens pronouncements In Human Biodiversity Marks has attempted to distill from a centuries long debate what has been learned and remains to be learned about the biological differences within and among human groups His is the first such attempt by an anthropologist in years for genetics has undermined the fundamental assumptions of racial taxonomy The history of those assumptions from Linnaeus to the recent past the history of other more useful assumptions that derive from Buffon and have reemerged to account for genetic variation are the poles of Marks s exploration

Development Barbara Rogoff, 2003-02-13 Three year old Kwara ae children in Oceania act as caregivers of their younger siblings but in the UK it is an offense to leave a child under age 14 ears without adult supervision In the Efe community in Zaire infants routinely use machetes with safety and some skill although U S middle class adults often do not trust young children with knives What explains these marked differences in the capabilities of these children Until recently traditional understandings of human development held that a child's development is universal and that children have characteristics and skills that develop independently of cultural processes Barbara Rogoff argues however that human development must be understood as a cultural process not simply a biological or psychological one Individuals develop as members of a community and their development can only be fully understood by examining the practices and circumstances of their communities
