Biology Of Civilisation Understanding Human Culture As A Force In Nature:

The Biology of Civilisation Stephen Vickers Boyden, 2004 Looks at the complex interrelationships between human culture and the nature Covering the period from the beginning of agriculture right up to the present day it focuses on issues relating to human health and well being and the state of our natural environment From his vast survey author Stephen Boyden draws some key conclusions critical to the future of humanity

The Human Place in Nature John Schooneveldt, 2025-04-02 This book explores a new approach to understanding the evolution of mind and consciousness by examining the perceptual abilities of animals and the way they experience their world It offers a science based bottom up approach to our own conscious worldview by seeing it through the eyes of others Emphasis is on the role of context in evolution and the way animals internalize and engage with the contextual properties of their world that are meaningful for them The core argument is that a context which is subjective and comprised of the perceptual capacities offers new insights into the evolution of mind Rather than seeing biological evolution in terms of the emergence of mindless forms and cultural evolution as the emergence of disembodied minds the book seeks to integrate these two perspectives through the rigorous mapping of contexts Key Features Reveals an understanding of animal minds Formulates a hypothesis for the evolution of consciousness Includes a discussion of the origin of technological innovation Provides a rationale for the ecology of mind Proposes a theory of the evolution of language Outlines the science of experience and how it influences choice Explains the role of context and choice with respect especially to human ecology

Human Dependence on Nature Haydn Washington, 2013 Humanity is dependent on Nature to survive yet our society largely acts as if this is not the case The energy that powers our very cells the nutrients that make up our bodies the ecosystem services that clean our water and air these are all provided by the Nature from which we have evolved and of which we are a part This book examines why we deny or ignore this dependence and what we can do differently to help solve the environmental crisis Written in an accessible and engaging style Haydn Washington provides an excellent overview of humanity's relationship with Nature The book looks at energy flow nutrient cycling ecosystem services ecosystem collapse as well as exploring our psychological and spiritual dependency on nature It also examines anthropocentrism and denial as causes of our unwillingness to respect our inherent dependence on the natural environment The book concludes by bringing these issues together and providing a framework for solutions to the environmental crisis

The Bionarrative Stephen Boyden, 2016-08-19 This book is for the general reader interested in the human place in nature and the future of civilisation It is based on the biohistorical approach to the study of human situations This approach recognises human culture as a new and extremely important force in the biosphere The book discusses the evolution of life and the essential ecological processes on which all life including human civilisation depend It describes the conditions of life and ecology of humans in the four ecological phases in human history with emphasis on the impacts of human culture on biological systems It explains how as cultures evolved they often came to embrace not only factual information of good practical value but also assumptions that are sheer nonsense sometimes leading to activities that caused unnecessary human distress or damage to local ecosystems These are examples of cultural maladaptation There have been countless instances of cultural maladaptation in human history The days of the fourth ecological phase of human history the Exponential Phase are numbered Cultural maladaptations are now on a massive scale and business as usual will inevitably lead to the ecological collapse of civilisation The only hope for the survival of civilisation lies in radical changes in the worldviews and priorities of the prevailing cultures of the world leading to a fifth ecological phase a phase in which human society is truly sensitive to in tune with and respectful of the processes of life This is called a biosensitive society The book concludes with discussion on the essential characteristics of a biosensitive society and on the means by which the necessary cultural transformation might come about

Demystifying Sustainability Haydn Washington, 2015-02-11 What is sustainability Much has been said about the terms sustainability and sustainable development over the last few decades but they have become buried under academic jargon This book is one of the first that aims to demystify sustainability so that the layperson can understand the key issues questions and values involved Accessible and engaging the book examines the old sustainability of the past and looks to the future considering how economic ecological and social sustainability should be defined if we are to solve the entwined environmental economic and social crises It considers if meaningful sustainability is the same as a sustainable development based on endless growth examining the difficult but central issues of overpopulation and overconsumption that drive unsustainability The book also explores the central role played by society's worldview and ethics along with humanity's most dangerous characteristic denial Finally it looks to the future discussing the appropriate technology needed for sustainability and suggesting nine key solutions This book provides a much needed comprehensive discussion of what sustainability means for students policy makers and all those interested in a sustainable future

Ecopolis Paul F. Downton, 2008-12-09 From 2008 for the first time in human history half of the world's population now live in cities Yet despite a wealth of literature on green architecture and planning there is to date no single book which draws together theory from the full range of disciplines from architecture planning and ecology which we must come to grips with if we are to design future cities which are genuinely sustainable Paul Downton's Ecopolis takes a major step along this path It highlights the urgent need to understand the role of cities as both agents of change and means of survival at a time when climate change has finally grabbed world attention and it provides a framework for designing cities that integrates knowledge both academic and practical from a range of relevant disciplines Identifying key theorists practitioners places and philosophies the book provides a solid theoretical context which introduces the concept of urban fractals and goes on to present a series of design and planning tools for achieving Sustainable Human Ecological Development SHED Combining knowledge from diverse fields to present a synthesis of urban ecology the book will provide a valuable resource for students researchers and practitioners in architecture construction planning geography and the traditional life sciences     Transdisciplinary Theory, Practice and Education Dena Fam,Linda Neuhauser,Paul Gibbs,2018-08-27 This exciting new state of the art book reviews explores and advocates ways in which collaborative research endeavours can through a transdisciplinary lens enhance student academic and social experiences Drawing from a wide range of knowledges contexts geographical locations and internationally renowned expertise the book provides a unique look into the world of transdisciplinary thinking collaborative learning and action In doing so the book is action orientated reflective theoretical and intriguing and provides a place for all of these to meet and mingle in the spirit of curiosity and imagination     The EcoEdge Esther Charlesworth,Rob Adams,2013-09-13 Presenting diverse case studies of contemporary sustainable urban practice from Europe Africa India South America the USA and Australia this book offers the reader a fantastic wealth of practical material from a range of internationally renowned authors Each practical case study has addressed issues and then offered solutions to implement sustainable cities across a range of urban scales and cultures Urgent design challenges explored include population density recreating infrastructure that supports carbon neutral or low carbon emission intensive urban activities and retrofitting for sustainability Highly illustrated thematically focused and with superb global coverage this book presents a multi voiced and yet highly cohesive reference for anyone interested in green issues in urban design and architecture     The Sustainable City IV C. A. Brebbia,Enzo Tiezzi,2006 Urban areas produce a series of environmental problems arising from the consumption of natural resources and the consequent generation of waste and pollution These problems contribute to the development of social and economic imbalances All these problems which continue to grow in our society require new solutions This book addresses the many inter related aspects of the urban environment from transport and mobility to social exclusion and crime prevention Publishing papers from the Fourth International Conference on Urban Regeneration and Sustainability the volume includes topics such as Strategy and Development Planning Development and Management Environmental Management Planning Issues Socio economic Issues The community and the City Cultural Heritage Architectural Issues Traffic and Transportation Land Use and Management Public Safety Conservation of Resources Sustainable Transportation and Transport Integration Depleted Ecological Resources Environmental Pollution Energy Resources Systems     Macrosocial Determinants of Population Health Sandro Galea,2007-10-24 Macrosocial Determinants of Population Health explores social factors such as culture mass media political systems and migration that influence public health while systematically considering how we may best study these factors and use our knowledge from this study to guide public health interventions Starting from the dual premises that a population is not merely the sum of its individuals and that the improvement of population health is not at odds with the practical desire of improving the health of individuals Sandro Galea and 33 expert contributors present chapters in three sections The first section includes eleven chapters that each discuss one macrosocial determinant of population health The factors covered by these chapters encompass a broad range of intellectual concerns ranging from regulations and legal frameworks global governance patent law and policy to overarching global phenomena globalization migration urbanization the media to a specific consideration of the role of economic political and corporate policies and practices The second section considers particular methodologic issues pertinent to those interested in the study of how macrosocial factors influence the health of populations offering insights on ecological studies and causal inference and weighing how we may best study the overlapping roles of determinants at local state and national levels The third section presents a framework for interventions that aim to improve population health and innovative case studies that show this framework in action Throughout contributors emphasize the potential of population strategies to influence traditional risk factors associated with health and disease Each section ends with Galea's integrative chapters bringing the observations and conclusions from the chapters into clear usable focus Macrosocial Determinants of Population Health is a work of major theoretical empirical and practical interest for disciplines as varied as public health epidemiology health promotion sociology and health policy Its systematic field building approach makes it as valuable to the public health provider as to the scholars and students studying the health of populations

Ecosystem Management and Sustainability Robin Kundis Craig, John Copeland Nagle, Bruce Parady, Oswald J. Schmitz, William K. Smith, Norman L. Christensen Jr, Janet Neuman, 2012-02-27

A Future Beyond Growth Haydn Washington, Paul Twomey, 2016-04-14 There is a fundamental denial at the centre of why we have an environmental crisis a denial that ignores that endless physical growth on a finite planet is impossible Nature provides the ecosystem services that support our civilisation thus making humanity unavoidably dependent upon it However society continues to ignore and deny this dependence A Future Beyond Growth explores the reason why the endless growth economy is fundamentally unsustainable and considers ways in which society can move beyond this to a steady state economy The book brings together some of the deepest thinkers from around the world to consider how to advance beyond growth The main themes consider the deep problems of the current system and key aspects of a steady state economy such as population throughput and consumerism ethics and equity and policy for change The policy section and conclusion bring together these various themes and indicates how we can move past the growth economy to a truly sustainable future This volume will be of great interest to students and scholars of economics sustainability and environmental studies in general

Rethinking Environmentalism Sharachchandra Lele, Eduardo S. Brondizio, John Byrne, Georgina M. Mace, Joan Martinez-Alier, 2018-10-09 A multidisciplinary examination of alternative framings of environmental problems with using examples from forest water energy and urban sectors Does being an environmentalist mean caring about wild nature Or is environmentalism synonymous with concern for future human well being or about a fair apportionment of access to the earth's resources and a fair sharing of pollution burdens Environmental problems are undoubtedly one of the most salient public issues of our time yet environmental scholarship and action is marked by a fragmentation of ideas and approaches because of the multiple ways in which these environmental problems are framed Diverse framings prioritize different values and explain problems in various ways thereby suggesting different solutions Are more inclusive framings possible Will this enable more socially relevant impactful research and more concerted action and practice This book takes a multidisciplinary look at these questions using examples from forest water energy and urban sectors It explores how different forms of environmentalism are shaped by different normative and theoretical positions and attempts to bridge these divides Individual perspectives are complemented by comprehensive syntheses of the differing framings in each sector By self reflectively exploring how researchers study and mobilize evidence about environmental problems the book opens up the possibility of alternative framings to advance collaborative and integrated understanding of environmental problems and sustainability challenges
