Review of the Department of Energy's Genomics: GTL Program National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Life Sciences, Committee on Review of the Department of Energy's Genomics: GTL Program, 2006-04-19

The U S Department of Energy DOE promotes scientific and technological innovation to advance the national economic and energy security of the United States Recognizing the potential of microorganisms to offer new energy alternatives and remediate environmental contamination DOE initiated the Genomes to Life program now called Genomics GTL in 2000 The program aims to develop a predictive understanding of microbial systems that can be used to engineer systems for bioenergy production and environmental remediation and to understand carbon cycling and sequestration This report provides an evaluation of the program and its infrastructure plan Overall the report finds that GTL s research has resulted in and promises to deliver many more scientific advancements that contribute to the achievement of DOE s goals However the DOE s current plan for building four independent facilities for protein production molecular imaging proteome analysis and systems biology sequentially may not be the most cost effective efficient and scientifically optimal way to provide this infrastructure As an alternative the report suggests constructing up to four institute like facilities each of which integrates the capabilities of all four of the originally planned facility types and focuses on one or two of DOE s mission goals The alternative infrastructure plan could have an especially high ratio of scientific benefit to cost because the need for technology will be directly tied to the biology goals of the program
