Eastern Tribal Societies During the Nineteenth Century Eveline van der Steen,2014-10-14 This volume provides an in depth study of tribal life in the Near East in the 19th century exploring how tribes shaped society economy and politics in the desert as well as in villages and towns Until the First World War Near Eastern society was tribally organized Particularly in the Levant and the Arabian peninsula where the Ottoman empire was weak large and powerful tribes such as Anaze Beni Sakhr and Shammar interacted and competed for control of the land the people and the economy The main sources for this study are travel accounts of 19th century adventurers and explorers Their travels on horseback on camel or on foot opened a fascinating window on a world with an ideology that was fundamentally different from their own often Victorian background One chapter is dedicated to oral traditions in the region from heroic epics to short poems which lets the tribes and tribe members themselves speak giving a voice to the tribal frame of mind Evidence of tribal organization as a driving force in society can be found in documents and sometimes in the archaeological record from the Bronze Age onwards While a straight comparison between ancient and subrecent tribal communities is fraught with difficulties and must be treated with caution a better understanding of 19th century tribal ethics and customs provides useful insights into the history and the power relations of a more distant past At the same time it may help us understand some of the underlying causes for the present conflicts afflicting the region Annual Report of the Free Libraries Committee Birmingham Free Libraries.
