Biological Solar Energy Conversion:

Biological Solar Energy Conversion Akira Mitsui, 2012-12-02 Biological Solar Energy Conversion is a publication comprised of formal papers presented during the 1976 conference on Biological Solar Energy Conversion held at the Rosenstiel School of Marine and Atmospheric Science. The conference aims to bring together a group of scientists who have made significant observations concerned with various aspects of solar energy conversion. The ideas and information presented in this publication intend to expand the understanding of the readers about the biological processes involved in biological solar energy conversion and direct them to practical application. This compilation is divided into four sections and consists of 25 scholarly articles about the subject matter. The first section includes papers that discuss developments in the methods employed in the capture and utilization of solar energy. The second and third sections feature papers that dealt with the synthesis of organic compounds from carbon dioxide and nitrogen fixation and production of single cell protein. The last section of the publication presents papers that show future trends and practical applications involved in the biological conversion of solar energy. This book will be an excellent reference for researchers working on energy research and development. This collection of scientific articles can also be an invaluable reference for agriculture, meteorology, plant sciences, agronomy, and biology students.

Hydrogen is the element of greatest abundance in the universe; however, its production from renewable resources remains a major challenge. The papers presented within this volume enhance and expand upon presentations made at the Workshop on Biohydrogen 2002. Biohydrogen III evaluates the current status of Biohydrogen research worldwide and considers future research directions. Important research on new fuel opportunities, 15 contributions from the world's leading experts.    Biological solar energy conversion Mitsui A. ... et al, 1977    Energy Research Abstracts, 1979    Directory of solar energy research activities in the United States, 1980    Solar Energy and Nonfossil Fuel Research, 1979    Energy, 1978    The Biology of Crop Productivity Peter S. Carlson, 2013-09-11 The Biology of Crop Productivity attempts to reassess and restate what is known about the biology underlying crop productivity. The prime question which this volume attempts to address is: What is known about the biology of crop productivity from a range of diverse biological disciplines, and what needs to be known? Is it possible to formulate the important biological questions, can we begin to discern the biological mechanisms and limitations which underlie crop production? This volume is certainly not an all-inclusive survey. It attempts to supplement and explicate material presented in other volumes. The volume is organized into five broad areas: the first deals with various interactions of plants and their environments the second deals with the interactions of plants with other organisms the third treats some aspects of the internal organization of plants the fourth examines genetic manipulations utilizing plant materials and the fifth outlines a perspective for future research efforts This volume is intended primarily for persons interested or actively engaged in research in the agricultural plant sciences
