Biology of Fertilization V3 Charles Metz, 2012-12-02 The Fertilization Response of the Egg is the third and final volume of the Biology of Fertilization which provides a detailed discussion of the responses of the egg to the fertilizing sperm collectively called as the activation of the egg. It is an anthology of physiological articles written by biology and physiology professionals. The book is divided into 12 chapters, half of which focused on the sea urchin egg fertilization as it is the most studied form. The first two chapters cover the discussions on the first visible egg responses to fertilization and the formation of the fertilization membrane. The following chapter describes the relationship of sperm entry into the amphibian egg and the establishment of the symmetry of the embryo. Other chapters focus on the electrical and ionic changes of the egg plasma membrane and cytoplasm. The remaining parts of the book describe the synthetic activities in the egg that are initiated during fertilization. These include description of DNA and maternal RNA syntheses, nuclear cytoplasm interactions, protein synthesis during oogenesis and early embryogenesis, and the expression of maternal messenger RNA. The book is an excellent reference for undergraduate and graduate biology students specifically in physiology, embryogenesis, and developmental biology. It can also be an invaluable source of information for lecturers and professionals in biology. Biology of Fertilization V1 Charles Metz, 2012-12-02 Biology of Fertilization Volume 1 Model Systems and Oogenesis is the first in a three volume series that gathers various lines of research about reproduction in general and fertilization in particular. Knowledge about cell biology, immunobiology, biochemistry, biophysics, and molecular genetics has progressed significantly beyond our understanding of some aspects of fertilization. Components of these constitute model systems. The present volume includes reviews of such systems, some relatively simple model systems in lower organisms, sex determining mechanisms, and oogenesis. The book contains 12 chapters organized into two sections. Section I includes studies on evolution, reproductive success, and immortality of the germ line, the structures and mechanisms involved in fertilization problems, and fertilization in Paramecium. Section II on oogenesis includes studies on gamete differentiation, sex determining role of the H-Y antigen in mammals and non-mammals, the mechanism of starfish oocyte maturation, meiotic arrest in animal oocytes, and the mitotic and meiotic aspects of the mammalian germ cell life cycle. Gametes - The Oocyte Jurgis Gediminas Grudzinskas, J. L.

Yovich, 1995-07-28 This volume and its companion volume on the spermatozoon provide an authoritative and wide ranging account of the gametes and their reproductive role and function in humans. Acknowledged authorities from around the world contribute a detailed and timely account of the oocyte. The volume starts with an evolutionary perspective before focusing on the molecular and cellular biology of the oocyte and its structure and function. The development and maturation of the oocyte is fully dealt with to include the endocrine and paracrine regulation of ovarian function. Practical issues such as oocyte storage and ovarian stimulation are also fully covered. The causes of female infertility are also an important theme. The volume concludes with a thought provoking chapter on ethical considerations. The volume will be an essential source of information for all clinicians and scientists with an interest in human reproduction

Biology of Fertilization: The fertilization response of the egg Charles B. Metz, Alberto Monroy, 1985 The Fertilization Response of the Egg is the third and final volume of the Biology of Fertilization which provides a detailed discussion of the responses of the egg to the fertilizing sperm collectively called as the activation of the egg It is an anthology of physiological articles written by biology and physiology professionals The book is divided into 12 chapters half of which focused on the sea urchin egg fertilization as it is the most studied form The first two chapters cover the discussions on the first visible egg responses to fertilization and the formation of the fertilization

Ovarian Follicles in Reptiles and Birds Sardul S. Guraya, 2013-03-09 In 1954 when I obtained my B Sc Honours School degree in Zoology I was asked by my advisor the late Professor Vishwa Nath to make comparative cytological studies of oogenesis in birds for my M Sc Honours School thesis submitted to the Panjab University in 1956 Using the classical techniques of cytology I studied the various aspects of follicle growth and atresia in five species of birds Professor Vishwa Nath who himself devoted most of his life to the study of the comparative cytology of gametogenesis in animals was so much impressed by my findings on avian oogenesis that he asked me to continue my research work for the Ph D degree under his supervision During my research work on avian oogenesis I became very much interested in further comparative study of ovarian follicles in vertebrates and thus decided to make comparative morphological and histochemical studies of ovarian follicles in reptiles birds and mammals Actually very little information was available in this regard in 1957 when I started working for the Ph D degree In subsequent years I and my numerous dedicated and highly motivated M Sc and Ph D students continued to make comparative morphological histochemical biochemical and physiological studies of ovarian follicles in all groups of vertebrates In connection with the subject of this book I would like to make special mention of my two brilliant students namely Dr S K Varma and Dr R K

Biology of Fertilization V2 Charles Metz, 2012-12-02 Biology of Fertilization Volume 2 Biology of the Sperm is the second in a three volume series that brings together various lines of research about reproduction in general and fertilization in particular It is devoted to spermatogenesis sperm physiology and the initial interactions of sperm with egg components The book is organized into three parts Part I on spermatogenesis and sperm physiology includes studies on the evolution of the sperm cell regulatory mechanisms sperm antigen differentiation and maturation of sperm in the reproductive tracts in mammals physicochemical mechanisms of the acrosome filament extrusion process and enzymes associated with sperm cell function Part II deals with chemotaxis in microorganisms bacteria and slime molds Part III on gamete recognition and binding includes studies on identifying isolating and characterizing specific sperm and egg surface components involved in sperm egg interaction fertilization in the alga Fucus fertilization in insects and the role of lysins in fertilization

Freeze Fracture Images of Cells and Tissues Richard L. Roberts, Richard G. Kessel, Hai-Nan Tung, 1991 The freeze fracture technique coupled with transmission electron microscopy has contributed significant scientific information toward the experimental investigation of both normal and abnormal cells in the fields of cellular developmental and molecular biology and to several subdisciplines in medicine including pathology anatomy and physiology This book presents a complete and up to date account of the macromolecular organization of membranes and the many membrane specialization of cells as well as overall cellular organization as reflected in tissues and organs While the book emphasizes freeze fracture images and the useful scientific information contained in them the authors have also included transmission electron micrographs of ultrathin sectioned cells tissues and organs in order to aid in the interpretation of the freeze fracture image and increase the book s utility Where three dimensional views are particularly useful scanning electron micrographs are included

Biology of Fertilization: Biology of the sperm Charles B. Metz,Alberto Monroy,1985 Biology of Fertilization Volume 2 Biology of the Sperm is the second in a three volume series that brings together various lines of research about reproduction in general and fertilization in particular It is devoted to spermatogenesis sperm physiology and the initial interactions of sperm with egg components The book is organized into three parts Part I on spermatogenesis and sperm physiology includes studies on the evolution of the sperm cell regulatory mechanisms sperm antigen differentiation and maturation of sperm in the reproductive tracts in mammals physicochemical mechanism
