Food Biotechnology in Ethical Perspective Paul B. Thompson,2007-05-05 Agrifood biotechnology the genetic transformation of plants and animals through recombinant means has created controversy in the food system for more than twenty years This thoroughly revised and amended edition of Paul B Thompson s path breaking study of ethical and philosophical issues raised by this technology up to date The original 1997 edition was the first book length treatment by a philosopher to focus on food and agricultural biotechnology covering ethical issues associated with risk assessment labelling animal transformation patents and the impact of biotechnology on traditional farming communities in both the developed and developing world The new edition reflects lessons from the hotly contested debates over those issues in the intervening decade and includes wholly new discussions on ethical issues associated with livestock cloning the Precautionary Principle and the transatlantic debate between United States and European perspectives on biotechnology Thompson s unique and insightful approach to addressing the risks and questions of public acceptability associated with novel technology stands as a model for anyone interested in technological innovation and social change The book should be of interest to scholars and citizens interested in the Internet or nanotechnology while it remains an essential resource for understanding the twists and turns of debate over the role of molecular genetics in the transformation of the global food system

The Transformative Capacity of New Technologies Ulrich Dolata, 2013 Scientific concepts on the co evolution of technology and society as well as recent sociotechnical system approaches focus on the general interrelations between technology socioeconomic structures and institutions Their aim is to study and explain processes and modes of technological change Rarely however have answers been put forward on the related question of processes of socioeconomic and institutional change provoked by emerging new technological opportunities and constraints The Transformative Capacity of New Technologies redresses this imbalance exploring the questions how and to what extent do socioeconomic structures institutions and actors change under the influence of new technologies how do they react to technology induced pressures to change what patterns do they adopt The book provides theoretical considerations as well as practical tools for analyzing and classifying exceptional periods of substantial sociotechnical change It examines the literature on path dependency and path creation on organizational and institutional change and on sociotechnical transitions Case studies on subjects such as the pharmaceutical industry the music industry the energy sector and scientific publishing support the theoretical analysis The book will be of interest to students and scholars of sociology science and technology studies work and industry studies and management of technology and innovation Industrial Clusters and Inter-firm Networks Charlie Karlsson,B"rje Johansson,Roger Stough,2005-01-01 This well edited volume should be on the shelf of every regional development agency library Its seventeen chapters written by 31 predominantly academic contributors are divided into four coherent sections the first on cluster and network modelling the next on empirical analysis a third on case studies finishing with two chapters on policy analysis and strategies Tony Jackson Journal of Economic Development This book provides a state of the art overview of spatial industrial clusters and inter firm networks Given the prevailing political belief that clusters can be a major vehicle for economic development and growth it is important to have a sound understanding of clusters and how they emerge grow eventually stagnate and disappear It is also vital to know when and how to apply policy measures to support cluster development in order to increase economic welfare This book illuminates both the theoretical and empirical issues relating to clusters and inter firm networks and presents a number of interesting case studies from a variety of different countries

Entrepreneurship Ian Chaston, 2017-01-28 This comprehensive book responds to the growing demand to study entrepreneurship as a key driver of innovation and competitive advantage Challenging the existing idea that technological entrepreneurship exists predominantly in SMEs and as a result of market demands the author argues that a commitment to entrepreneurship remains the most effective strategy for sustaining wealth generation for both organisations and entire nations The aim of Technological Entrepreneurship is to provide the reader with additional knowledge and understanding of the concepts associated with the exploitation of technological entrepreneurship and to demonstrate how associated management principles are somewhat different to those utilised in market driven entrepreneurship Validation of presented theoretical concepts is achieved through coverage of processes and practices utilised by real world organisations seeking to achieve maximum wealth generation with specific emphasis on how technological entrepreneurship is the source of disruptive innovation within service sector organisations and how the philosophy is causing fundamental change in the provision of healthcare

Betting on Biotech Joseph Wong, 2011-10-15 After World War II several late developing countries registered astonishingly high growth rates under strong state direction making use of smart investment strategies turnkey factories and reverse engineering and taking advantage of the postwar global economic boom Among these economic miracles were postwar Japan and in the 1960s and 1970s the so called Asian Tigers Singapore South Korea and Taiwan whose experiences epitomized the analytic category of the developmental state In Betting on Biotech Joseph Wong examines the emerging biotechnology sector in each of these three industrial dynamos They have invested billions of dollars in biotech industries since the 1990s but commercial blockbusters and commensurate profits have not followed Industrial upgrading at the cutting edge of technological innovation is vastly different from the dynamics of earlier practices in established industries The profound uncertainties of life science based industries such as biotech have forced these nations to confront a new logic of industry development one in which past strategies of picking and making winners have given way to a new strategy of throwing resources at what remain very long shots Betting on Biotech illuminates a new political economy of industrial technology innovation in places where one would reasonably expect tremendous potential yet where billion dollar bets in biotech continue to teeter on the brink of spectacular failure
