the remnants of one of the world's largest preindustrial cities Teotihuacan Monumental in scale Teotihuacan is organized along a three mile long thoroughfare the Avenue of the Dead that leads up to the massive Pyramid of the Moon Lining the avenue are numerous plazas and temples which indicate that the city once housed a large population that engaged in complex rituals and ceremonies Although scholars have studied Teotihuacan for over a century the precise nature of its religious and political life has remained unclear in part because no one has yet deciphered the glyphs that may explain much about the city's organization and belief systems In this groundbreaking book Annabeth Headrick analyzes Teotihuacan's art and architecture in the light of archaeological data and Mesoamerican ethnography to propose a new model for the city's social and political organization Challenging the view that Teotihuacan was a peaceful city in which disparate groups united in an ideology of solidarity Headrick instead identifies three social groups that competed for political power rulers kin based groups led by influential lineage heads and military orders that each had their own animal insignia Her findings provide the most complete evidence to date that Teotihuacan had powerful rulers who allied with the military to maintain their authority in the face of challenges by the lineage heads Headrick's analysis also underscores the importance of warfare in Teotihuacan society and clarifies significant aspects of its ritual life including shamanism and an annual tree raising ceremony that commemorated the Mesoamerican creation story

To Change Reels Isabel Balseiro, Ntongela Masilela, 2003 With the end of apartheid South African cinema is at a turning point in its history This collection offers an exploration of a film industry that has excluded its country's black majority in both representation and production and which now must overcome collusion between racist ideology and film form Until recently filmmakers could work only within a culture that reluctantly took black South Africans into account Therefore to explore what South African cinema has been and could become the authors do not limit their discussion to film production but approach cinema as a manifestation of cultural history How has the purpose of cinema been viewed at different times in South Africa by different governments and social groups What is the relation between film and a sense of nationhood in South Africa Such questions lead to a consideration not only of films made by South Africans in South Africa but also of an unfolding film culture within a series of stages that have yet to give rise to a national cinema
