Artful Science Enlightenment Entertainment And The Eclipse Of Visual Education:

Artful Science Barbara Maria Stafford,1994 Reveals the magic of learning in the 18th century This text draws on historical sources and popular imagery to make the case for the pedagogical opportunities suggesting ways of putting intelligence enjoyment and communicative power back into thinking with images Artful Science Barbara Maria Stafford,1994 Advances in Visual Semiotics ,2011-12-07 No detailed description available for Advances in Visual Semiotics The Enlightened Eye ,2015-06-29 Poets painters philosophers and scientists alike debated new ways of thinking about visual culture in the long eighteenth century The essays in The Enlightened Eye Goethe and Visual Culture demonstrate the extent to which Goethe advanced this discourse in virtually all disciplines The concept of visibility becomes a constitutive moment in a productive relationship between the verbal and visual arts with far reaching implications for the formation of bourgeois identity pedagogy and culture From a variety of theoretical perspectives the contributors to this volume examine the interconnections between aesthetic and scientific fields of inquiry involved in Goethe s visual identity By locating Goethe s position in the examination of visual culture both established and emerging scholars analyze the degree to which visual aesthetics determined the cultural production of both the German speaking world and the broader European context The contributions analyze the production presentation and consumption of visual culture defined broadly as painting sculpture theater and scientific practice The Enlightened Eye promises to invest new energy and insight into the discussion among literary scholars art historians and cultural theorists about many aspects of visual culture in the Age of Goethe

Good Looking Barbara Maria Stafford,1996 Challenging the reflexive identification of images with vice Seeing Things Amanda Shubert,2025-11-15 A cultural history of nineteenth century media imaginaries Seeing Things tells the story of how Victorians experienced the virtual images created by modern optical technologies magic lanterns stereoscopes phenakistoscopes museum displays and illusionistic stage magic Amanda Shubert argues that interactions with these devices gave rise to a new virtual aesthetics an understanding of visual and perceptual encounters with things that are not really there The popularization of Victorian optical media redefined visibility as a rational mode of spectatorship that taught audiences to distinguish illusion from reality As an aesthetic expression of a civilizational ideal that defined the capacity to see but not believe to be entertained without being deceived it became a sign of western supremacy By tracing the development of virtual aesthetics through nineteenth century writings from the novels of George Eliot and Charles Dickens to popular science writing and imperial travelogues Seeing Things recovers a formative period of technological and literary innovation to explain how optical media not only anticipated cinema but became a paradigmatic media aesthetic of western modernity Dutch Art Sheila D. Muller,2013-07-04 An illustrated feast for the eye and intellect Dutch Art explores developments in art art history art criticism and cultural history of the Netherlands from the artists workshops for the Utrecht Dom in 1475 to the latest movements of the 1990s it is lavishly illustrated with 147 black and white photographs and 16 pages in full color More than 100 internationally recognized scholars museum professionals artists and art critics contributed signed essays to this monumental work including historians sociologists and literary historians Doing Experimental Media Archaeology Andreas Fickers, Annie Oever, 2022-12-31 This book offers a plea to take the materiality of media technologies and the sensorial and tacit dimensions of media use into account in the writing of the histories of media and technology In short it is a bold attempt to question media history from the perspective of an experimental media archaeology approach It offers a systematic reflection on the value and function of hands on experimentation in research and teaching Doing Experimental Media Archaeology Theory is the twin volume to Doing Experimental Media Archaeology Practice authored by Tim van der Heijden and Aleksander Kolkowski The Magical Imagination Karl Bell, 2012-02-23 Innovative history of the popular magical imagination and ordinary people s experience of urbanization in nineteenth century England Science Images and Popular Images of the Sciences Peter Weingart, Bernd Huppau, 2012-10-12 What is a popular image of science and where does it come from Little is known about the formation of science images and their transformation into popular images of science In this anthology contributions from two areas of expertise image theory and history and the sociology of the sciences explore techniques of constructing science images and transforming them into highly ambivalent images that represent the sciences The essays most of them with illustrations present evidence that popular images of the sciences are based upon abstract theories rather than facts and equally images of scientists are stimulated by imagination rather than historical knowledge Worm Work Janelle A. Schwartz, 2012 Worms Natural history is riddled with them Literature is crawling with them From antiquity to today the ubiquitous and multiform worm provokes an immediate discomfort and unconscious distancing it remains us against them in anthropocentric anxiety So there is always something muddled or dirty or even offensive when talking about worms Rehabilitating the lowly worm into a powerful aesthetic trope Janelle A Schwartz proposes a new framework for understanding such a strangely animate nature Worms she declares are the very matter with which the Romantics rethought the relationship between a material world in constant flux and the human mind working to understand it Worm Work studies the lesser known natural historical records of Abraham Trembley and his contemporaries and the familiar works of Erasmus Darwin Charles Darwin William Blake Mary Shelley and John Keats to expose the worm as an organism that is not only reviled as a taxonomic terror but revered as a sign of great order in nature as well as narrative This book traces a pattern of cultural production a vermiculture that is as transformative of matter as it is of mind It distinguishes decay or division as positive processes in Romantic era writings compounded by generation or renewal and used to represent the biocentric complex structuring of organicism Offering the worm as an archetypal figure through which to recast the evolution of a literary order alongside questions of taxonomy from 1740 to 1820 and on Schwartz unearths Romanticism as a rich humus of natural historical investigation and literary creation Visions of Empire David Philip Miller, Peter Hanns Reill, 2011-07-21 Richly illustrated 1996 collection on how Pacific plants and peoples were depicted by European explorers Documenting the World Gregg Mitman, Kelley Wilder, 2016-12-20 Imagine the twentieth century without photography and film Its history would be absent of images that define historical moments and generations the death camps of Auschwitz the assassination of John F Kennedy the Apollo lunar landing It would be a history in other words of just artists renderings and the spoken and written word To inhabitants of the twenty first century deeply immersed in visual culture such a history seems insubstantial imprecise and even perhaps unscientific Documenting the World is about the material and social life of photographs and film made in the scientific quest to document the world Drawing on scholars from the fields of art history visual anthropology and science and technology studies the chapters in this book explore how this documentation from the initial recording of images to their acquisition and storage to their circulation has altered our lives our ways of knowing our social and economic relationships and even our surroundings Far beyond mere illustration photography and film have become an integral transformative part of the world they seek to show us Citizen Spectator Wendy Bellion, 2012-12-01 In this richly illustrated study the first book length exploration of illusionistic art in the early United States Wendy Bellion investigates Americans experiences with material forms of visual deception and argues that encounters with illusory art shaped their understanding of knowledge representation and subjectivity between 1790 and 1825 Focusing on the work of the well known Peale family and their Philadelphia Museum as well as other Philadelphians Bellion explores the range of illusions encountered in public spaces from trompe l'oeil paintings and drawings at art exhibitions to ephemeral displays of phantasmagoria Invisible Ladies and other spectacles of deception Bellion reconstructs the elite and vernacular sites where such art and objects appeared and argues that early national exhibitions doubled as spaces of citizen formation Within a post Revolutionary culture troubled by the social and political consequences of deception keen perception signified able citizenship Setting illusions into dialogue with Enlightenment cultures of science print politics and the senses Citizen Spectator demonstrates that pictorial and optical illusions functioned to cultivate but also to confound discernment Bellion reveals the equivocal nature of illusion during the early republic mapping its changing forms and functions and uncovers surprising links between early American art culture and citizenship Words at Work and Play Shirley Brice Heath, 2012-01-12 A thirty year study tracking the changes in family life and language development in 300 working class families from 1981 onwards The English Virtuoso Craig Ashley Hanson, 2009-05-15 This study aims to overturn 20th century criticism that cast the English virtuosi of the 17th and early 18th centuries as misguided dabblers arguing that they were erudite individuals with solid grounding in the classics deep appreciation for the arts and sincere curiosity about the natural world The Natural and the Human Stephen Gaukroger, 2016-01-21 Stephen Gaukroger presents an original account of the development of empirical science and the understanding of human behaviour from the mid eighteenth century Since the seventeenth century science in the west has undergone a unique form of cumulative development in which it has been consolidated through integration into and shaping of a culture But in the eighteenth century science was cut loose from the legitimating culture in which it had had a public rationale as a fruitful and worthwhile form of enquiry What kept it afloat between the middle of the eighteenth and the middle of the nineteenth centuries when its legitimacy began to hinge on an intimate link with technology The answer lies in large part in an abrupt but fundamental shift in how the tasks of scientific enquiry were conceived from the natural realm to the human realm At the core of this development lies the naturalization of the human that is attempts to understand human behaviour and motivations no longer in theological and metaphysical terms but in empirical terms One of the most striking feature of this development is the variety of forms it took and the book explores anthropological medicine philosophical anthropology the natural history of man and social arithmetic Each of these disciplines re formulated basic questions so that empirical investigation could be drawn upon in answering them but the empirical dimension was conceived very differently in each case with the result that the naturalization of the human took the form of competing and in some respects mutually exclusive projects

Bring the World to the Child Katie Day Good,2020-02-11 How long before the advent of computers and the internet educators used technology to help students become media literate future ready and world minded citizens Today educators technology leaders and policy makers promote the importance of global wired and multimodal learning efforts to teach young people to become engaged global citizens and skilled users of media often go hand in hand But the use of technology to bring students into closer contact with the outside world did not begin with the first computer in a classroom In this book Katie Day Good traces the roots of the digital era s connected learning and global classrooms to the first half of the twentieth century when educators adopted a range of media and materials including lantern slides bulletin boards radios and film projectors as what she terms technologies of global citizenship Good describes how progressive reformers in the early twentieth century made a case for deploying diverse media technologies in the classroom to promote cosmopolitanism and civic minded learning To bring the world to the child these reformers praised not only new mechanical media including stereoscopes photography and educational films but also humbler forms of media created by teachers and children including scrapbooks peace pageants and pen pal correspondence The goal was a mediated cosmopolitanism teaching children to look outward onto a fast changing world and inward at their own national greatness Good argues that the public school system became a fraught site of global media reception production and exchange in American life teaching children to engage with cultural differences while reinforcing hegemonic ideas about race citizenship and US world relations

Cultures of Control Miriam R. Levin,2005-06-27 This collection of essays explores the history of control by looking at a variety of cultural forms practices and beliefs These ideas are examined critically not only in the light of the possibilities which control technologies seem to offer for resolving human problems but also the contradictory moral political and economic consequences they have had The discussion takes into account the important modes in which humans have cast their organizational efforts political social sychological economic and legal It also takes a longue dur e view of the history of control looking back to the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and establishes the continuities in the twentieth century as a transatlantic phenomenon

Commercial Visions Dániel Margócsy, 2014-10-09 Entrepreneurial science is not new business interests have strongly influenced science since the Scientific Revolution In Commercial Visions Dániel Margócsy illustrates that product marketing patent litigation and even ghostwriting pervaded natural history and medicine the big sciences of the early modern era and argues that the growth of global trade during the Dutch Golden Age gave rise to an entrepreneurial network of transnational science Margócsy introduces a number of natural historians physicians and curiosi in Amsterdam London St Petersburg and Paris who in their efforts to boost their trade developed modern taxonomy invented color printing and anatomical preparation techniques and contributed to philosophical debates on topics ranging from human anatomy to Newtonian optics These scientific practitioners including Frederik Ruysch and Albertus Seba were out to do business they produced and sold exotic curiosities anatomical prints preserved specimens and atlases of natural history to customers all around the world Margócsy reveals how their entrepreneurial rivalries transformed the scholarly world of the Republic of Letters into a competitive marketplace Margócsy's highly readable and engaging book will be warmly welcomed by anyone interested in early modern science global trade art and culture
