Arthritis and Exercise: a User's Guide to Fitness and Independence. 2nd ed. Gwen Ellert. 122 pp. Illust. Trelle Enterprises Inc., Vancouver. 1986. $11.95. ISBN 0-9692210-0-2

This book was written for people with arthritis and for inactive people who would like to cautiously improve their flexibility and strength. Ellert, a nurse and arthritis sufferer, includes an introduction to exercise and to the disease process of arthritis, focusing on rheumatoid arthritis. The book is divided into three sections: stretching, strengthening, and relaxing exercises. Specific exercises for each part of the body are illustrated and concisely described.

Ellert acquaints her readers with relevant terminology, defines the principles of exercise and presents a wholistic approach, coordinating exercise with activity level and lifestyle. Overall the illustrations are creative, are invigorating and add to what could be a bland topic. At times, however, the seriousness of the message appears to be sacrificed in favour of casualness; for example, the bed exercises are introduced on a very sloppily made bed, and frequently the characters do not show the anatomic alignment necessary to perform the exercise described.

Another difficulty is the author's use of the Ellert-Parker Five Category Joint Classification to establish the frequency and rate of exercise. This is an over-generalized guideline, particularly for the acute and subacute stage of arthritis, and may be misleading. It is in these stages that a more critical analysis of physical condition is required to match needs with exercise: the mere reduction of exercise repetitions is not satisfactory.

Ellert has made a valiant effort to provide a needed self-help manual for a special group of people. Medical supervision, however, is required for those whose disease is in the acute or subacute stage or is not stable.

Contact Dermatitis. 3rd ed. Edited by Alexander A. Fisher. 954 pp. Illust. Lea & Febiger, Philadelphia. 1986. $96.50. ISBN 0-8121-0971-6

This very readable and comprehensive work contains new chapters on the pathophysiologic aspects of allergic contact hypersensitivity, predictive testing for contact allergy, the histologic features of various types of contact dermatitis, and computers and contact dermatitis. There are also valuable updates on perfumes, scent and species, photodermatitis, occupational dermatitis, and rubber and adhesives. Fisher himself has updated chapters on a wide variety of topics, including contact dermatitis due to food additives, formaldehyde, medical devices and topical medications. I particularly enjoyed reading some of his therapeutic pearls.

The charts and index are well organized and very helpful, especially for those running a contact dermatitis clinic. The index now covers over 1000 allergens, listing their patch test concentrations, where they are found and their significant cross-reactions. The references are excellent.

This book is a necessity for dermatologists regularly doing patch testing. For others, reading all the highlighted boxes will give a concise summary of its contents. Dermatologist residents and general dermatologists will find it an invaluable reference book.

Ventolin Nebules® (Sulbutamol Sulphate)
Bronchodilator beta₂-adrenergic stimulant

INDICATIONS: Treatment of severe bronchospasm associated with exacerbations of chronic bronchitis and bronchial asthma. Can be used by "wet" nebulization with or without intermittent positive pressure ventilation. When administered through a nebulizer, it should be used with compressed air or oxygen.

CONTRAINDICATIONS: Hypersensitivity to any of the ingredients and cardiac tachyarrhythmias.

WARNINGS: a) Use in children under 5 years of age has not been established. b) Safety of sulbutamol in pregnancy and in lactation has not been established. c) Care should be taken with patients suffering from myocardial insufficiency, cardiac arrhythmias, hypertension, diabetes mellitus, thyrotoxicosis, and idiopathic subaortic aortic stenosis. d) Fatalities have been reported following excessive use of sympathomimetic amines by inhalation, the exact cause of which is unknown. It is advisable that in the event of either of the preceding situations the use of the product be discontinued immediately and alternative therapy instituted, since in the reported cases the patients did not respond to other forms of therapy until the drug was withdrawn. e) Ventolin Respiator Solution should be administered with caution to patients being treated with monoamine oxidase inhibitors or tricyclic antidepressants since the action of vasoconstrictor drugs on the vascular system may be potentiated. f) Beta-adrenergic blocking drugs, especially the non-cardioselective ones, may effectively antagonize the action of sulbutamol.

PRECAUTIONS: Should be used with caution in patients sensitive to sympathomimetic amines. Concurrent use with other sympathomimetic agents is not recommended since such combined use may lead to deleterious cardiovascular effects. Failure to respond to sulbutamol inhalation indicates deterioration of the condition and the physician should be promptly contacted. Patients should be warned not to exceed the recommended dose.

ADVERSE REACTIONS: The most frequent adverse reactions are nervousness and tremor (headache, tachycardia, palpitations, muscle cramps, insomnia, nausea, weakness, and dizziness have also been reported). Other rare adverse reactions have been drowsiness, flushing, malaise, irritability, chest discomfort, increased heart rate, tachycardia, hypertension, angina, vomiting, vertigo, central stimulation, sexual taste, and drying or irritation of the oropharynx.

DOSEAGE AND ADMINISTRATION: The average dose for a single treatment in patients over 5 years of age is 0.25 to 0.5mg, (1.25 to 2.5mg Sulbutamol Sulphate in 2 to 5ml, or more diluted solutions of Sulbutamol Chloride Diluent for Inhalation or Sterile Normal Saline. For more refractory cases, the single dose may be increased to 1mg (5mg of sulbutamol). Treatment may be repeated every 4 to 6 hours, if necessary. Patients requiring single doses of 2.5mg may be administered the contents of a single unit dose (2.5mg of sulbutamol). For more refractory cases, 2 unit doses (5mg of sulbutamol) may be taken. Treatment may be repeated every 4 to 6 hours, if necessary. Ventolin Respiator Solution can be used by 2 methods: 1) Nebulization. 2) Intermittent positive pressure ventilation. 1) When used as a nebulizer, a mouthpiece or a face mask may be applied. The following nebulizers have been used: Maxwell, Bennett Twin Jet and Wright. The nebulizer should be connected to a compressed air or oxygen pump. Gas flow should be about 6 to 10 L/minute. With an average volume of 3ml, a single treatment lasts approximately 10 minutes. It is advisable to prepare one dose at a time, or to utilize the Unit Dose presentation. 2) Respiator, diluted Ventolin Respiator Solution, usually 1:10 to 1:100. 1 to 2 ml of Sodium Chloride Diluent for Inhalation, Sterile 5% Dextrose, or Sterile Normal Saline, should be used within 24 hours from time of dilution when stored at room temperature or within 48 hours when stored under refrigeration. Diluents preserved with benzyl alcohol or other preservatives are not recommended as the safety of the preservative other than benzalkonium chloride has not been established for inhalation therapy. Cleaning and maintenance of the nebulizer must be carefully exercised by strict adherence to the manufacturer's instructions. 2) When administered through intermittent positive pressure ventilation, the respiratory pressure is usually 10-20cm H₂O and the duration of administration varies from 5 to 20 minutes, depending upon the patient and the control of the apparatus. This length of administration provides a more gradual and more complete type of bronchospasm. It has been reported that the use of intermittent positive pressure ventilation in acute asthma attacks or several cases was related to lethal outcomes of hypoxia and pneumothorax. This method of administration may be ineffective in patients with severe obstruction and greatly increased airway resistance and it may induce severe hypercapnia and hypoxia. During intermittent positive pressure ventilation therapy, monitoring of arterial blood gases is highly desirable.

AVAILABILITY: Ventolin Respiator Solution contains sulbutamol sulphate equivalent to 5mg of sulbutamol base per ml. The solution is preserved with benzalkonium chloride 0.01% w/v, and is available in containers of 10 and 1000ml. Ventolin Respiator Solution (0.5mg Sulbutamol Sulphate) contains sulbutamol sulphate equivalent to 2.5mg of sulbutamol base in 2.5ml, and is preserved with benzalkonium chloride 0.01% w/v. It is an isotonic solution adjusted to pH 3.0 to 4.5. Product monograph available to health professionals.
